Interstate Progressing . . .

Nebraska May Be 1st

Nebraska stands a good chance of being the first state to complete its interstate system, according to an informal review of fiscal year 1972 highway accomplishments and future projections by the State Department of Roads.

The review shows that the state has approximately 62 miles of interstate left to open to traffic out of an authorized 480.7 miles, and that Nebraska has already obligated 86% of its total interstate funds for construction. This obligation percentage is the highest in the nation.

Target date for completion of the states entire interstate system is 1975. However, I-80, the main east-west system, will be open to traffic by late 1974. A 3.1 mile segment of I-129 in the South Sioux City area will be the last to open. Its target date is 1975.

The remaining portion of I-680 from 72nd St. to the Missouri River in Omaha will be open by late 1973 with the exception of the west-bound mate to the Mormon Bridge. This bridge has a 1974 deadline depending upon the availability of federal funds.

The informal review shows 419.1 miles of interstates open to traffic. Completion dates for the remaining segments are:

Interstate 80 in Omaha, 1.9 miles by late 1972.

Interstate 680 around Omaha, 3.5 miles by late 1973.

Interstate 80 in western Nebraska, 53.1 miles by late 1974.

The review breaks down segments of the western interstate as follows:

Sunol-Lodgepole, 7 miles, late 1972.

East Sidney-Sunol, 10.6 miles, late 1973.

Kimball S. E.-Potter, 15.6 miles, late 1973.

West Sidney-East Sidney, 4.5 miles, late 1974.

Potter-Brownson, 9.1 miles, late 1974.

Brownson-West Sidney, 6.3 miles, late 1974.

Estimated costs of completing the various segments of all the interstates are:

Interstate 80 — $15 million out of a total of $255.5 million.

Interstate 680 — $5 million out of a total of $32.8 million.

Interstate 129 — $13.6 total cost.

Gov. J. James Exon said he was confident that Nebraska would be the first state to complete its interstate programs.

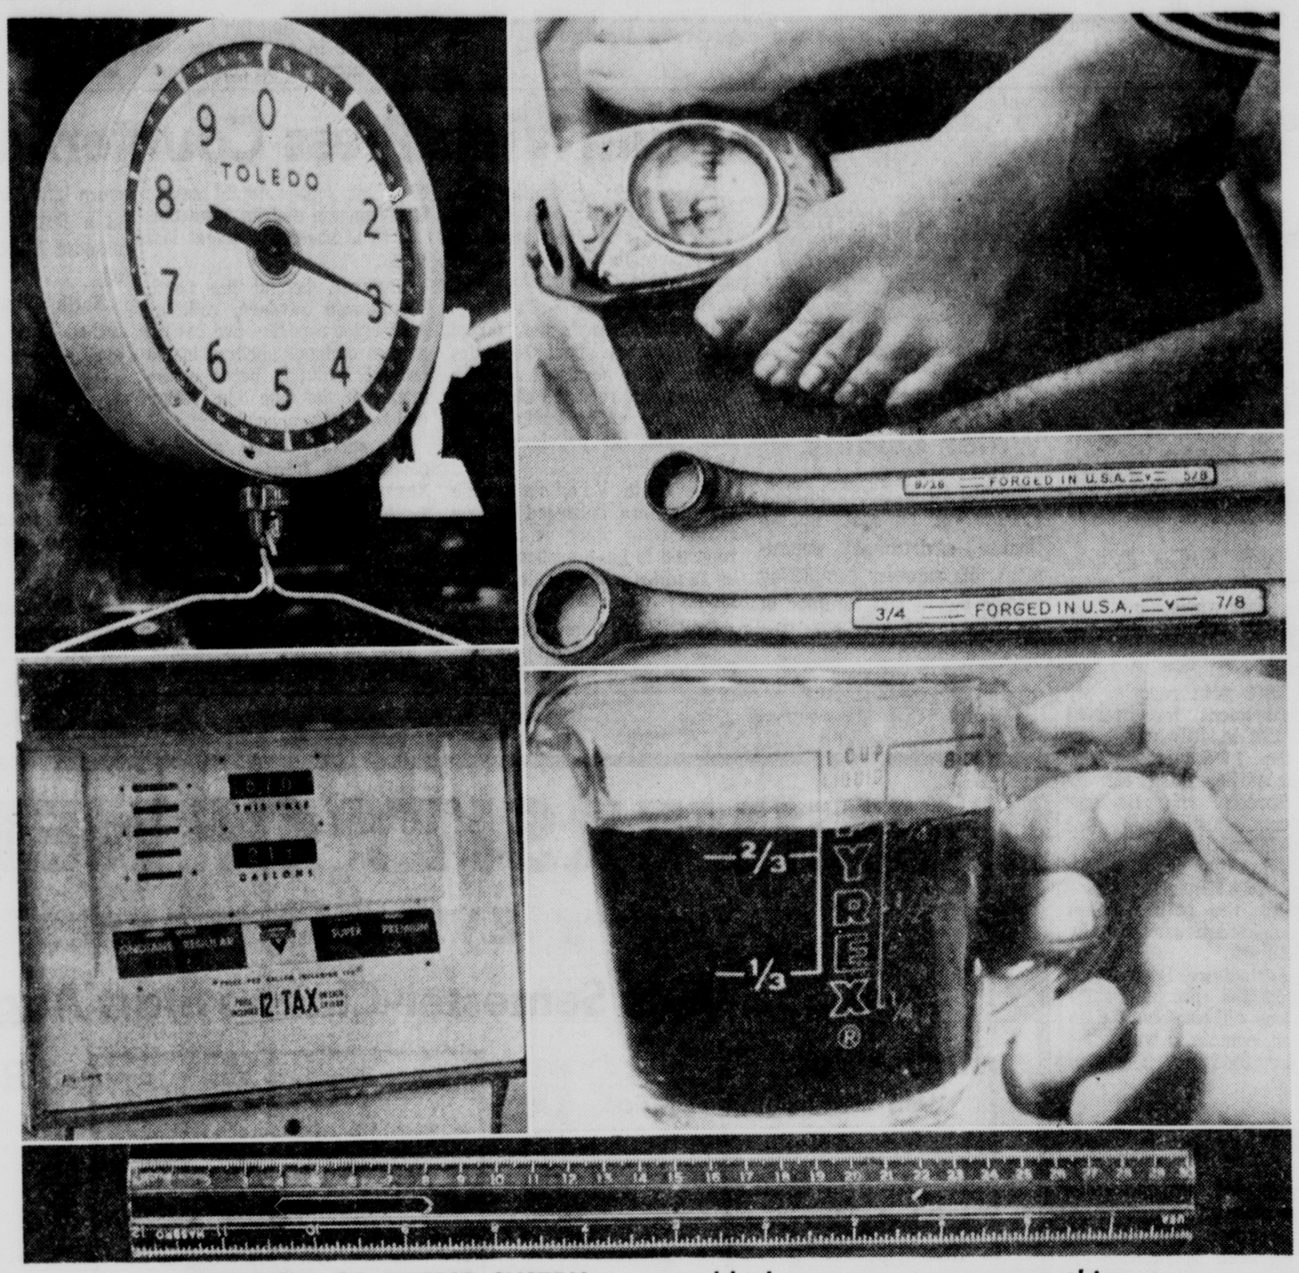

"I think Nebraska will have that honor, especially if Congress extends the national deadline to 1980 which it is thinking of doing," he said.

Although the governor lauded interstate progress and said he was proud of the 31 miles of interstates that were opened during his administration, he was more impressed with the department's fiscal year 1972 highway accomplishments.

It was one of the largest in the state's history. From July 1, 1971 to June 30, 1972, the department let $63.7 million in highway contracts. This was almost $14 million more than in fiscal year 1971. The 1972 program was accomplished on a pay as you go basis and was a very balanced program," he said.

The review shows that $22.7 million went for work on the primary system. Seventeen million dollars for the secondary system, and $15.7 million for interstate work. The remaining $8 million went for other highway programs including safety improvements.

"This balanced program is in line with my philosophy that highways should be constructed and improved on the basis of public needs and that no one facet of highway development should get the lion's share of available funds to the detriment of others that are needed. The 1972 program provided statewide benefits and helped to meet the needs of all Nebraskans," Exon said.

ADOPTION OF METRIC SYSTEM . . . would change many common things.

Metric System Would Change Things

By GORDON WINTERS
Star Staff Writer

If the United States undergoes a wholesale conversion to the metric system, the change would have an incredibly pervasive impact on American life.

A housewife would buy her roast by the kilogram, her cloth by the meter and her gasoline by the liter.

Industries would have to convert their equipment to read in milimeters, centimenters and meters.

Gas pumps, road signs, speedometers and bathroom scales would have to be calibrated differently.

The beauty queen who now describes herself as 36-25-36 would give her statistics as 91-64-91.

School kids would have to use the other side of their rulers.

The change may already be beginning.

Last week the U.S. Senate passed and sent to the House historic legislation that would attempt to initiate widespread conversion to the metric system.

The bill, as it now reads, calls for converting the federal government to the metric system and beginning the voluntary conversion of industry, adding the incentive of encouraging procurement practices.

Why convert to the metric system?

For one thing, it is generally believed that in an absolute sense, the metric system is easier to use because all figures are a multiple of ten.

Another reason is that if the United States converted the metric system would virtually be the worldwide standard, and proponents of the change have argued that it would be easier for the U.S. to compete overseas.

The disadvantages are that few Americans are familiar with the metric system and it would be a considerable expense for industry to make the conversion.

Interviews with a sampling of Lincolnites revealed that most of them believed that the ramifications of the conversion would be immense. All of them, however, also said that they did not believe it was impossible for Americans to adapt.

"It would be a hassle, but we wouldn't have too much problem except for people's misunderstandings," said Tim Hardie, manager of Jeanne's Fashion Fabrics.

Hardie also noted that conversion would make it easier for him to handle foreign imports.

A Hinky-Dinky store manager said, "I've got to believe that it's going to be a tremendous task, not only in expense but in education. Everything we have now is in pounds and ounces."

"If it merits doing I think we can handle it," he said.

Walt Yant, of the Yant Equipment Co., which handles gasoline pumps, estimated that it would cost at least $300 to convert a gas pump to measure gas in liters.

"If the government wants to go, let them go," he said.

Robert Sigrist, manager of the Brunswick plant in Lincoln, said the plant uses the metric system in some of its programs now.

However, if the plant were to use the metric system in all phases of its operation, it would take considerable time before employes could use the system easily, he said.

'There's nothing undoable about it," he said. "It's just going to take time and expense."

What are the chances that the U.S. will actually convert to the metric system?

Dr. David Golden, a physics professor at the University of Nebraska at Lincoln says he believes the conversion is inevitable.

"If the decision were not made on the basis of politics it would have happened long ago, he said.

Campaign Funds Switch Probed

. . . Following Break-In

©The New York Times

Miami Beach — Maurice H. Stans maintained under oath Thursday that he does not know how $114,000 in contributions to President Nixon's campaign organization wound up in the hands of a man arrested in the raid on Democratic headquarters last June 17.

Stans, a former secretary of commerce who is now Nixon's chief fund-raiser, was subpoenaed and questioned privately Thursday morning in the Doral Hotel suite he has occupied during the Republican National Convention here.

It was the second time in as many days that ranking GOP officials here for the convention have been interrogated in connection with the break-in by the office of State Attorney Richard E. Gerstein, the local prosecutor.

Stans has been questioned by federal authorities, including agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, but Thursday's session is believed to be the first time the former secretary has been sworn.

Both Stans and Kenneth H. Dahlberg, a regional finance chairman for Nixon who was subpoenaed Wednesday, were questioned about Florida aspects of the case by Gerstein's chief investigator, Martin Darbis.

In a public statement Thursday, Darbis said only that he had concentrated on possible violations of the Florida law that might be involved in the $114,000 transaction. He added that Stans had cooperated "fully" in the questioning.

While may details of the investigations here and in Washington have not been disclosed, the course of the funds found in the possession of the men accused of the raid has become almost wholly clear in the past several days.

It is now apparent that the money originated, in two packages, as large cash contributions by prominent Democrats and others anxious to hide their identities as donors to the Republican presidential nominee.

One package originated in Texas. It included $89,000 that had been taken to Mexico City and converted into four bank drafts payable to a lawyer there, Manuel Ogarrio Daguerre. He has denied knowledge of the drafts.

Two Houston oilmen, who also serve as regional finance officials for the Nixon campaign, have been subpoenaed in connection with the Mexican transaction by a federal grand jury in Washington.

William C. Liedtke, president of the Penzoil Company, and Roy J. Winchester, the company's vice president for public affairs, were understood to have gone before the federal panel Thursday.

Both men are regional chairmen of the Finance Committee to R-Elect the President. The chairman of the Texas Finance Committee to Re-Elect the President, Robert H. Allen of Houston, has said he is a friend of Ogarrio's.

Gerstein's office also served a subpoena on Allen, and he was scheduled for questioning Thursday morning. The session was postponed, however, apparently when the names of Liedtke and Winchester came up.

The $89,000 in checks was "sacked up" in Houston, with other funds apparently included in the package, and sent to re-election committee officials in Washington for the campaign, an informant said.

More or less simultaneously, Dahlberg has said he came to Florida from his home in Minnesota and picked up a $25,000 cash donation on April 9. The money is said to have come from a important Democratic source.

The Minnesotan also turned the money into a cashier's check, drawn on a bank in Boca Raton, and flew it to Washington, where he handed it to Stans at a fund-raising meeting in the Washington Hilton Hotel on April 11.

Stans said during his testimony Thursday, a source familiar with the case said, that he had never seen the four Mexico City drafts and was unaware of them until they came up in the investigation.

The former commerce secretary acknowledged that he received the $25,000 check from Dahlberg and handed it almost immediately to Hugh W. Sloan, Jr., onetime treasurer of the Committee for the Re-Election of the President.

Stans is understood to have said that he has since been informed that Sloan passed the instrument on to G. Gordon Liddy, a onetime lawyer for the Finance Committee to Re-Elect the President.

Sloan resigned his post on July 14, but he denied the move had anything to do with a break-in. Liddy was dismissed after he refused on a number of occasions to answer government questions about the break-in.

In Washington Thursday, Liddy spent more than three hours in the offices of a lawyer for the Democratic Party, giving the first in a series of at least 13 depositions scheduled in connection with a lawsuit arising from the raid.

Steps Taken

Ottawa — The government is taking steps, presumably in consultation with other countries, to stabilize the sagging uranium market, it was announced here.

Demo Ticket Picks Up Two Endorsements

The Democratic presidential ticket picked up two more union endorsements and a $250,000 campaign contribution Thursday but President Nixon got a warmer reception from the American Legion than his opponent did a day earlier.

Sen. George McGovern, the Democratic presidential nominee, got cheers, applause, an endorsement and a pledge of $250,000 from the American Teachers Federation, which he addressed in St. Paul, Minn.

It was the first endorsement of a presidential candidate in the 56-year history of the ATF, of which McGovern is a member.

McGovern got his loudest hand when he said "teachers and other school employes must be guaranteed the right to strike."

But McGovern got a cold reception earlier when he spoke to the Veterans of Foreign Wars in Minneapolis, where stony silence greeted his declaration that "with every fiber of my being I love this country."

Meanwhile, President Nixon drew enthusiastic applause at the American Legion national convention in Chicago, which was barely polite when McGovern spoke there Wednesday.

Nixon accused McGovern of suggesting false and misguided moves that would gamble world peace and the safety of Americans.

Then he flew to Utica, Mich., for a speech at the dedication of a new high school and another enthusiastic reception — this one in the heart of anti-busing territory.

Nixon asked Michigan residents to "join me in urging the Congress . . . to give vigorous and diligent attention . . . at once" to his proposals to put a moratorium on new busing of school children and to set uniform national standards for school desegregation.

He assailed Congress for failing "to take the needed action" and warned: "They must act promptly . . . If children began the new term under court-ordered busing plans the present law apparently will be ineffective in terms of providing stays to parents who wish to appeal."

From Michigan, Nixon proceeded to San Diego for an airport rally in what he considers his "lucky city."

McGovern's running mate, R. Sargent Shriver, picked Pittsburgh to make his most heated attack yet on Nixon, calling him "the No. 1 warmaker" in the world.

He said of Nixon's acceptance speech Wednesday night:

"Richard Nixon proved one thing last night. He is a 'super politician' . . . A man with an excuse for every mistake—a different promise for every person."

Shriver added. "Richard Nixon talked of a full generation of peace. But during the 1,403 days since he was elected, America has not had even one day of peace; 20,000 Americans have died—not for a cause but for a mistake."

Shriver toured the Levinson Steel Co. in Pittsburgh and later attended a picnic with Allegheny County Democrats.

Earlier, in Cincinnati, Shriver received the endorsement of the 75,000-member International Molders Union, AFL-CIO—the 26th union endorsement of the McGovern-Shriver ticket.

And in Miami Beach, Vice President Spiro T. Agnew told newsmen he won't be the partisan "cutting edge" in the 1972 presidential contest, because it isn't necessary.

In the 1970 campaign, he said,, "it became essential for me to be a cutting edge, so to speak, cutting through the fog of all the Democrats who were running to a me-too position with the President's policies."

Agnew added: "This problem does not exist in 1972."

"I don't think we'll need a cutting edge this year," he said, "because the other candidate has grabbed the razor from the wrong end."

Murder Scene In Shakespeare Gets Real Blood

San Rafael, Calif. (UPI) — When the hot-headed Tibault killed Mercutio in a performance of Romeo and Juliet, the action seemed realistic. Blood was gushing from the eye of the actor, Christopher R.

The blood was real. Christopher R. had been stabbed by a rapier thrust, but was finishing out his part.

As fellow members of the Marin Shakespeare festival group concluded the play, the actor was taken to Marin General Hospital.

Doctors said Thursday that his eye is healing well.

Argentine Security Forces Arrest Political Leaders

©The New York Times

Buenos Aires — Argentine security forces arrested hundreds of left-wing labor, student and political leaders Thursday after a night of student rioting in major provincial cities.

The student demonstrations were to protest against the slaying of 16 guerrillas and the wounding of three in an attempted escape from a naval air base in southern Argentina Tuesday.

The disturbances spread to the capital Thursday when army troops broke into the headquarters of the Peronist movement — this country's main opposition force — and seized the bodies of three of the guerrillas, which had been brought here for a wake.

The student demonstrations broke out in the university cities of Rasario, Tucuman, Santa Fe, Corrientes, La Plata and Cordoba, where barricades were erected in student quarters. Shop windows were smashed and homemade firebombs were hurled at police.

The street rioting followed a pattern of events that led to an insurrection in Cordoba in 1969, during which more than a score of people died before troops restored order.

The Cordobazo, as the uprising became known, eventually brought down the military government of Lt. Gen. Juan Carlos Ongania, who seized power in 1969.

China Will Block U.N. Seat For Bangladesh

(c) New York Times News Service

United Nations, N.Y. — China, at a meeting of the United Nations Security Council Thursday, said that if the other council members insisted on pressing for the admission of Bangladesh into the United Nations, it would exercise its veto and block the membership bid. The vote on the membership application was postponed until Friday. (More on Page 3.)

Strikes Close To Border

Washington — On a number of occasions over the last four months, United States fighter-bombers have attacked railroad bridges within the 25-mile buffer zone south of the China border,, according to authoritative Pentagon officials. In two or three instances, they said, planes were very close to Chinese airspace before being warned away by American air controllers in radar planes.

Friendship No Ornament

Moscow — In the sharpest comment since the ouster of Soviet Union military advisers from Egypt, the Soviet press reminded the Arabs that their friendship with Moscow was "not like an ornament" to be replaced on a whim .Some diplomatic sources believe the comment in the government-controlled press indicates how much on the defensive the Kremlin feels after an initial effort to depict the advisers, withdrawal as the end of a successful mission.

Novelist Denounces Soviets

Stockholm — Aleksandr I. Solzhenitsyn, the Soviet novelist, whose works are banned in the Soviet Union, bitterly denounced his country in the lecture he would have delivered if he had been permitted to accept the Nobel prize he won in 1970. He also denounced the United Nations as an immoral organization in an immoral world that "jealously guards the freedom of some nations and neglects the freedom of others."

Arrests Follow Rioting

Buenos Aires — Argentine security forces arrested hundreds of leftwing labor, students and political leaders after a night of student rioting in major provincial cities. No Predictions On Game

Reykjavik — The 18th game of the world championship chess match was adjourned when Boris Spassky, playing the black pieces, sealed his 42nd move in a very complicated position. Bobby Fischer had an extra pawn, but there were so many threats on both sides that experts were loathe to predict the game's outcome. Spassky, who badly needed the point, played a fighting game. The score is 10 to 7 in Fischer's favor. (More On Page 26.)

Nixon Hits Position

Chicago — President Nixon, campaigning in Chicago, attacked Sen. George McGovern's defense policy, which he believes is one of his Democratic opponent's most vulnerable points. He accused McGovern of gambling "with the safety of the American people under a false banner of economy" and he said that his policies would reduce America to "the second strongest power in the world. (More On Page 1.)

Beef And Pork Prices Soar To Record Highs

Washington (AP)— Retail beef and pork prices soared to record highs in July, boosting over-all food costs also to a new peak. But there are signs of some cooling-off if retailers pass along recent reductions.

The Agriculture Department said Thursday the annual cost of a "marketbasket" of food rose $23 in July, a 1.8% increase. Higher farm prices accounted for $16 of the July gain.

Retail beef averaged more than $1.17 per pound on an all-cut basis, compared with $1.13½ in June. The previous record was about $1.16 last February and March.

Pork also was up, to a record all-cut average of 85.6 cents per pound at supermarkets, compared with 82.0 in June and the earlier record of 82.1 in January 1970.

But beef, by far the largest item, was dropping in price at the farm and wholesale levels by late July and in August. And Nixon administration officials have predicted consumers soon will find meat prices lower as more cattle reached market.

Meat, primarily beef, accounts for nearly one-third of the average family's food budget.

Recent reports show live cattle in the Midwest averaged less than $36 per 100 pounds by mid-August, down about 10 per cent from peaks earlier this summer.

Dressed wholesale beef carcasses at Chicago also have dropped sharply, to less than $55 per 100 pounds, from more than $60 in July.

A major question is whether the lower farm and wholesale prices will be passed on fully to consumers.

In July the Agriculture Department report showed, middlemen widened their price spreads for beef while farmers averaged the same for cattle as in June.

In all, a market basket of food in July —theoretically enough to feed a typical family for a year — cost $1,322 compared with $1,299 in June. It was 4.5% more than in July last year.

The breakdown showed the "farm value" of beef — selling for $1.17 per pound in supermarkets — was 77.5 cents, the same as in June, but more than 14 per cent higher than a year earlier.

That is not what producers get for live cattle, but it is their share of what consumers pay for a pound of packaged beef. It takes about 2.3 pounds of live steer to make one pound of supermarket beef.

But the farm-retail spread, or middlemen's share, went up in July to 39.8 cents per pound. compared with 36.0 in June. The wholesale part of the price spread actually declined from 7.6 cents in June to 6.8 in July.

However, the report showed, the spread between wholesale and consumer prices — retail markup — went from 28.4 cents in June to 33.0 last month.

Now, with further declines in farm prices for live cattle and the lower wholesale prices, it appears up to retailers whether consumers soon will benefit.

The 1.8% gain reported by the department for over-all food prices in July was more than the 1.2% inrease announced earlier this week by the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Officials attributed the difference to the department's method of tabulating meat prices for the entire month while the bureau surveys only the first week.

The Agriculture Department has predicted grocery store food prices will rise about 4.5% this year, compared with a 2.4 gain for food at home in 1971.

Bremer Is Denied New Trial

Upper Marlboro, Md. (UPI) — A motion for a new trial for Arthur H. Bremer, the assailant of Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, was rejected Thursday by Chief Circuit Court Judge Ralph W. Powers.

Defense attorney Benjamin Lipsitz argued unsuccessfully that the prosecution's evidence was inadequate and that the jury had been prejudiced by news coverage of the attack.

Powers dismissed the motion after a 40-minute hearing.

Lipsitz has indicated he must now get $2,000 from some public or private source to pay for a transcript needed in further appeals.

Bremer has been held in the Maryland penitentiary in Baltimore since receiving a 63-year sentence Aug. 4 on state assault and gun law charges.

He still faces trial on less serious federal offenses in connection with the shooting of Wallace and three other persons in a Laurel, Md., shopping center May 15.

Prison officials said that the former Milwaukee busboy is being treated like any other prisoner but has steadfastly refused to cooperate with guards or government psychiatrists.

Bank Alarm Brings Noodles

Bangkok (UPI) — Officials tripped the alarm system at a bank in a rural town outside Bangkok recently in a test to see how long it would take police to arrive. The only response was a small boy carrying a bowl of noodles.

Investigation showed that the police station where the alarm buzzer was located next door to a noodle shop and that bank employes had arranged with the police to use the system to order their lunch.

South Viets Press Counterthrust In Que Son

Saigon (AP) — South Vietnamese troops pressed on Thursday a counterthrust up the strategic Que Son Valley and field reports said resistance was light.

But the enemy's new threat to Da Nang, about 30 miles to the north, persisted as fresh fighting was reported along the coast. The valley leads to Da Nang and the populous coast to the south.

The South Vietnamese assault force, bolstered by new troops from other areas, was reported to have pushed as far as 15 miles up the valley since Monday.

Brig. Gen. Pham Hoa Hiep, commander of the operation, said he hoped that within two days his forces would retake Que Son, the district town that fell in a disastrous defeat last week.

However, behind the South Vietnamese advance, military authorities reported two battles and an ominous shelling in the coastal lowlands between the mouth of the Que Son Valley and Da Nang.

An enemy force attacked government troops near Duy Xuyen, a district town 15 miles south of Da Nang. A South Vietnamese unit clashed with other enemy troops 10 miles south of Da Nang the country's second-largest city, the Saigon command reported.

The South Vietnamese claimed that 64 enemy soldiers were killed in the two clashes at a cost of eight South Vietnamese killed and 18 wounded.

North Vietnamese gunners turned their big, long-range 130mm artillery pieces on civilians for the first time in the area below Da Nang. Such a step had been feared as a possible cause of panic in larger population centers.

Thirty rounds of 130mm fire and 10 from captured U.S. howitzers hit Thang Binh, a district town, about 25 miles south of Da Nang near the jump-off point of the Que Son counterdrive, the South Vietnamese command said. Twenty civilians were reported wounded and 30 houses damaged.

On the northern front 100 miles above Que Son, South Vietnamese marines reported they killed 131 North Vietnamese troops Thursday morning in contacts around Quang Tri. Marine losses were put at six killed and 47 wounded.

Military spokesmen said the marines dodged more than 1,300 rounds of shell fire during the fighting. U.S. B52 bombers unloaded 1,200 tons of explosives in an arc west of the enemy-held city in the air effort to silence enemy guns and dry up supplies and reinforcements.

Have we got a Fall for You!

Possibly you don't know it, but your lawn knows that

EARLY FALL

IS THE BEST TIME TO SEED OR RE-SEED

After Mid-August, the nights are longer and cooler but the days are shorter and the soil is still warm. This is the ideal time to get good and quick germination of grass seed. (If the temperature is excessively high, wait for a cooling trend.) We recommend SCOTTS WINDSOR mixtures. We not only have the seed to sell; but we have fine lawns of several turf grasses to show you. It will pay you to see them.

At seeding time, by all means give your new seeding a boost by feeding with TURF BUILDER, SUPER TURF BUILDER OR STARTER FERTILIZER.

We use SCOTTS products on our lawns.

We can do more than point to a bag and say "here it is" because we practice what we preach.

48th Street

In front of our store is now open to traffic, if you come from the north on 48th or from the west on Holdrege. Those approaching from the south or east can follow the detour, read our signs and come in the back way. We have plenty of parking. One man tried to reach us from this direction and reported that he ended up in Om aha. It's really not that bad.

Tired Activists Pack Bags, Depart Miami

Miami Beach, Fla. (AP) — Tired young activists packed their duffle bags and headed for home Thursday, calling their three-day crusade at least a partial victory and determined to keep up their protest through the presidential election campaign.

They blamed the vandalism that swept the streets while President Nixon addressed the Republican National Convention on a minority of their numbers who, they claimed, reacted violently because they felt betrayed by the police.

Police, in turn, said it was they who were betrayed by "these animals who violated the agreement for peaceful demonstraions."

Nearly 1,000 demonstrators, about a third of the total who had come to Miami Beach to protest Nixon's war policy, were arrested. Most had been released under nominal bonds by noon.

Statement Heard

"We made a statement here that was heard across the country," said John Cox, 30, of Stockton, Calif., as he heaped his belongings atop his car parked outside Flamingo Park.

"We didn't block the hall, true. But over-all we called attention to the bombing of Vietnam and what we and thousands of others think of it and that was, after all, our purpose."

Bob Lamb, a spokesman for the Miami Conventions Coalition, said the Miami Beach police had broken their word when they refused to let the demonstrators stage a sit-in at the Convention Hall entrances.

The police promptly denied there had been any such agreement.

"Rocky Pomerance (Miami Beach police chief) betrayed us, let me tell you that," Lamb said.

"If we had been allowed to sit down at the entrances we would have all been arrested in 30 minutes to an hour and the demonstration would have been over for the evening."

The demonstrators found their path to the entrances barricaded by bumper-to-bumper buses.

"We were defeated tactically before we even began," said Marsha Monestersky, a member of the Students for a Democratic Society. "It was a perfect police trap." Thus outwitted, roving bands of disorganized protesters went to slashing tires, dumping garbage bins, throwing eggs and rocks and generally "trashing," in the term of the youths. They slowed, but did not halt, delegates from entering the convention hall.

Asked if police had broken their word by not letting the demonstrators stage their sit-in, Sgt. Pete Corso, Miami Beach police information officer, replied:

"Absolutely not. We made no such agreement with them.

"We were prompted to action by the hooligans and hoodlums who went on a rampage and hurt people, threw paint on delegates, urinated on them, cut tires and broke windows on cars and blocked up the streets.

"It was these animals who violated the agreement for peaceful demonstrations."

Refused Plans

The demonstrators thought they could do it nonviolently. But when the moment came, the young people refused to follow sitdown plans and wait to be carried off.

Instead they ran up and down Collins Avenue, the main route to the hall, and tossed trash cans into traffic lanes, slashed tires, and disabled cars by flipping open the hoods and yanking out the distributors.

Faced with these hit-and-run tactics, police turned to tear gas to try to methodically drive groups of youths out of the paths of the delegates.

However the rampage was triggered, it was clear that after it was generally put down, police continued to toss gas bombs and chase down small clusters of youths, many of them simply standing on sidewalks.

At one point, while the President was speaking inside, police tossed their bombs from inside the Convention Hall fence and laughed as the people milling about outside scattered.

The action infuriated the residents in small apartments across the street from the hall, most of them elderly pensioners, many of whom choked and gagged on the gas.

"Possibly at the height of things gas was used indiscriminately," Chief Pomerance allowed. "But then orders went out and it was stopped."

Between 4 p.m. Wednesday and 11 a.m. Thursday, police arrested 939 persons, 32 of them juveniles. Of the 907 adults arrested, 840 were men and 170 women. Most were charged with disorderly conduct, unlawful assembly or similar misdemeanors and their bonds in most cases set at $10.

Court officials said there were also a few more serious charges such as second-degree arson, resisting arrest violently and possession of heroin.

More than 25 judges in 11 courtrooms labored through the night to process the cases, along with 34 lawyers from the public defender's office and 175 volunteer attorneys.

The number of arrests exceeded the 680 persons taken into custody in the disorders that surrounded the Democratic National Convention at Chicago in 1968. But in Miami Beach ,relatively few were injured in the demonstrations, none seriously.

Ambulance Calls

In addition to arrests, the night of rampage in Miami Beach resulted in 34 ambulance calls. Sixteen demonstrators, one Secret Service agent and two policemen were treated at hospitals. Others were treated at the scene.

About 1,000 National Guardsmen and 2,000 Army paratroopers who had been posted nearby in case they were needed were not called in.

Allen Ginsberg, the 46-year-old protest poet, was one of those arrested for disorderly conduct. His bond was set at $150 rather than the usual $10, however, after he tested his wit on Judge Arthur Winton.

The judge told the poet he would have to abide by the rules of the court.

"Ahhhh," said Ginsberg, lighting up a stick of incense, "you will have to abide by the rules of the universe."

On Thursday, the scene at the park, where the demonstrators had pitched their tents and lean-tos during their stay, resembled that of a carnival breaking camp — grass littered and worn thin, all manners of vehicles packed to the rooftops with bundles.

"You saw those signs all over town that said 'Welcome delegates to the city of love, peace and happiness,'" said Barry Angelo, 22, of Los Angeles. "Well, I don't know about the part of town where the delegates were, but it was love, peace and happiness here in Flamingo Park."

BRITISH SOLDIERS . . . walk past guerrilla-bombed hotel in Belfast.

Irish Terrorists Mine Road Killing Trooper

Belfast, Northern Ireland (AP) — A British soldier was killed Thursday when guerrillas blew up his scout car with a massive mine on a lonely country road after lying in wait in a deserted farmhouse.

The blast threw the thin-skinned scout car 10 yards over a wall and blew the turret off the vehicle. The trooper, the car's driver, was blown out of the car and crushed when it landed on him.

The vehicle was part of a two-vehicle patrol ambushed near Crossmaglen, close to the border with Ireland. Troopers from the other vehicle, a heavy armored car, dragged the scout car commander free as the car burst into flame. He was seriously wounded.

Exploding ammunition drove the rescuers back when they tried to drag the driver clear.

An army spokesman said the guerrillas apparently had lain in wait in the farmhouse for a target for at least two days. They detonated the mine from the building, then fled, apparently across the border.

The trooper was the 530th person to die in Northern Ireland's three years of violence and the 13th soldier killed in the last three weeks.

Earlier, four armed guerrillas dumped a 100-pound bomb on the reception desk of the Rumkean House Hotel in South Belfast and told guests and employes to get out.

The bomb exploded about 30 minutes later, damaging the building. There were no casualties. It was the second Belfast hotel blasted by the terrorists in the last three days.

Another bomb damaged a house in the Roman Catholic Andersonstown district, a major base of the Irish Republican Army's Provisional wing.

Army sources speculated that the blast was caused by a bomb exploding prematurely while being made or handled by IRA terrorists.

Community Plan On Alcoholism Is Forwarded

The Lincoln Council on Alcoholism and Drugs has decided to forward to the state a copy of a preliminary draft of a community plan for meeting problems of alcoholics.

The draft is the work of the Comprehensive Alcoholism Planning Committee of the Lincoln Council, which has also charged that committee (CAPC) with continued revision and implementation of the plan.

The action came at an executive committee meeting of the council.

The plan will become part of a state plan for alcoholism treatment and abuse.

China Promises To Veto Bangladesh Entry To U.N.

United Nations (UPI) — China said Thursday it would cast its first United Nations veto to deny U.N. membership to Bangladesh, the fledgling country which once was part of Pakistan.

Chinese Ambassador Huang Hua, the first speaker in a Seurity Council debate on the admission of Bangladesh, said if the Soviet Union, India and other countries press for admission of Bangladesh to the world organization at this time, "China will categorically vote against it"

If China vetoes the resolution for admission on Bangladesh it would be the first veto cast by Peking since it was admitted to the U.N. last fall. China's negative vote as one of the big five powers carries the force of veto in the 15-nation council and could block the British, Soviet, Indian and Yugoslav draft resolution recommending Bangladesh be admitted without qualification.

Huang presented a draft resolution calling on the Security Council to postpone admission of Bangladesh until last December's U.N. resolutions on the East Pakistani question are implemented.

Those resolutions, passed in order to end the war between India and Pakistan which resulted in the creation of East Pakistan as the independent Bangladesh, were interpreted by China and Pakistan to require repatriation of 80,000 Pakistani prisoners of war and 10,000 civilian detainees. Huang said these provisions had not been put into effect and that Bangladesh should not be admitted until the prisoners and civilians were repatriated.

Huang said the Chinese resolution to postpone membership for Bangladesh was aimed at defending the principles of the U.N. charter as well as the interest of nations in the Asian subcontinent.

Indian Ambassador Samar Sen introduced the four-power draft calling for Bangladesh admission.

India, Yugoslavia and Britain, who followed Huang in the debate, argued for immediate approavel of Bangladesh membership.

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

With Republican delegates now heading home, the judgment after both conventions have been completed has to be that George McGovern has an almost impossible task ahead of him. Maybe there is, as McGovern says, a sense of change sweeping across the nation, but we rather doubt it.

The GOP convention, from all reports and from our own observation of it, was a masterful attempt to forge a working majority for the Nixon-Agnew team. Nixon engineered that Miami gathering and did so to pre-empt middle America.

In his acceptance speech, he was considerably more conservative, it seems, than he was four years ago but this is not hard to understand. Four years ago he was trying to draw a contrast to his opposition and this time around, he is relying upon the record of the past four years.

★

That really is not a particularly conservative record in most regards but Nixon's approach is conservative, relying upon the quality of life in the country today to see him through in November. The President talked of law and order and personally endorsed the work of lawmen throughout the land.

He talked of the courts and their continuing turn to the kind of strict constitutional philosophy which is his own. He talked more of the value of work than of the need for welfare and its reform.

He spoke of having less government in Washington, lower taxes and of "the American system." His remarks carried a heavy patriotic flavor, including a denunciation of those draft evaders who "have abandoned America" and praise for those who have served their country in Vietnam.

You have to grant that the average American would not have much argument with these generalities. They are the kind of things to which the average American subscribes. The real questions come in the implementation of such theories.

★

Part of McGovern's problem is that Nixon has gone far enough in the implementation of many things that it has left the South Dakota senator nowhere to go. This has pushed McGovern further to the left than he should be if he expects to make it with the voters in November.

Nixon is the incumbent and it is McGovern who must draw the kind of contrasts that would erode the President's popularity and turn the tide Democratic. Most political observers have felt all along that something would have to go drastically wrong some place, for McGovern to win, and that view still prevails.

Nixon has performed well enough, certainly, on the international scene that his performance is an asset. Domestically, he has not done as well but the record is by no means a bad one. It is not a liability, by any means, and it is highly doubtful that it will become one.

Our feeling is that you have to reach into deep philosophical corners to find the meaningful differences between McGovern and Nixon and this kind of reaching is not the kind of thing that determines the outcome of national elections.

★

Such reaching gets you back to the historic differences that have separated the two parties. Nixon's programs have taken the edge off those differences but a philosophical distinction would still seem to exist.

The distinction is whether we rely in the future upon the more traditional ways and methods or whether we want to embark upon more experimentation. Nixon will rely more heavily than McGovern upon standard economic theories and policies and lean more than McGovern toward the kind of diplomacy on the world scene that has pretty well characterized the country since World War II.

There is a feeling that much of the nation might want more experimentation than Nixon will provide but not as much as they fear McGovern might give. Nixon is promoting and selling the feel of an old shoe while McGovern comes on like a half-size too small.

Thus, McGovern faces both the problem of selling himself and of selling change and that is a formidable challenge, especially when the state of national affairs is as relatively stable as it is.

Dissension Nothing New In Olympic Competition

WASHINGTON — The Olympic spirit of selfless amateurism and international brotherhood once again is under siege. Baron Pierre de Coubertin, the Frenchman responsible for the revival of Olympic competition in 1896, was fond of saying: "The important thing is not winning but taking part." A high percentage of today's Olympic athletes would subscribe instead to the late Vince Lombardi's dictum that, "Winning isn't everything. It's the only thing."

Since an Olympic gold medal confers instant prestige on both the athlete and his country, the lofty goals of the quadrennial Games tend to receive only lip-service. As Bernard Levin wrote in the London Times, "Far from smoothing the paths of amity, (the Olympic Games) sow dragon's teeth instead."

The problem hardly is new. When the United States won more medals than any other country at the 1928 Olympics in Amsterdam, the president of the U.S. Olympic Committee could barely contain himself. "Nothing is more synonymous of our national success than is our national success in athletics," Douglas MacArthur declared. "This team proved itself a worthy successor of its brilliant predecessors."

Many Americans were shocked when Tommie Smith and John Carlos, who finished one-three in the 200-meter dash at the 1968 Games, raised black-gloved fists on the winners' stand to dramatize their concern about the black man's plight. The Olympics, it was argued, are no forum for political or any other kind of protest.

As with the quest for prestige, however, protest is no stranger to the Olympic Games. "At the 1908 Games in London, Forrest Smithson, of Notre Dame, was so incensed that the 100-meter hurdle race was being held on a religious holiday that he ran with a Bible in his left hand," William Johnson recently recalled in Sports Illustrated. "He won and set a world record."

More trouble arose that same year. On arriving at the Olympic stadium, the U.S. team noticed with anger that the Stars and Stripes was missing from the display of flags of competing nations. Thus, when the American contingent marched in review past King Edward VII's box, the flag-bearer held his banner erect. The American flag has never since been dipped in deference to a foreign head of state.

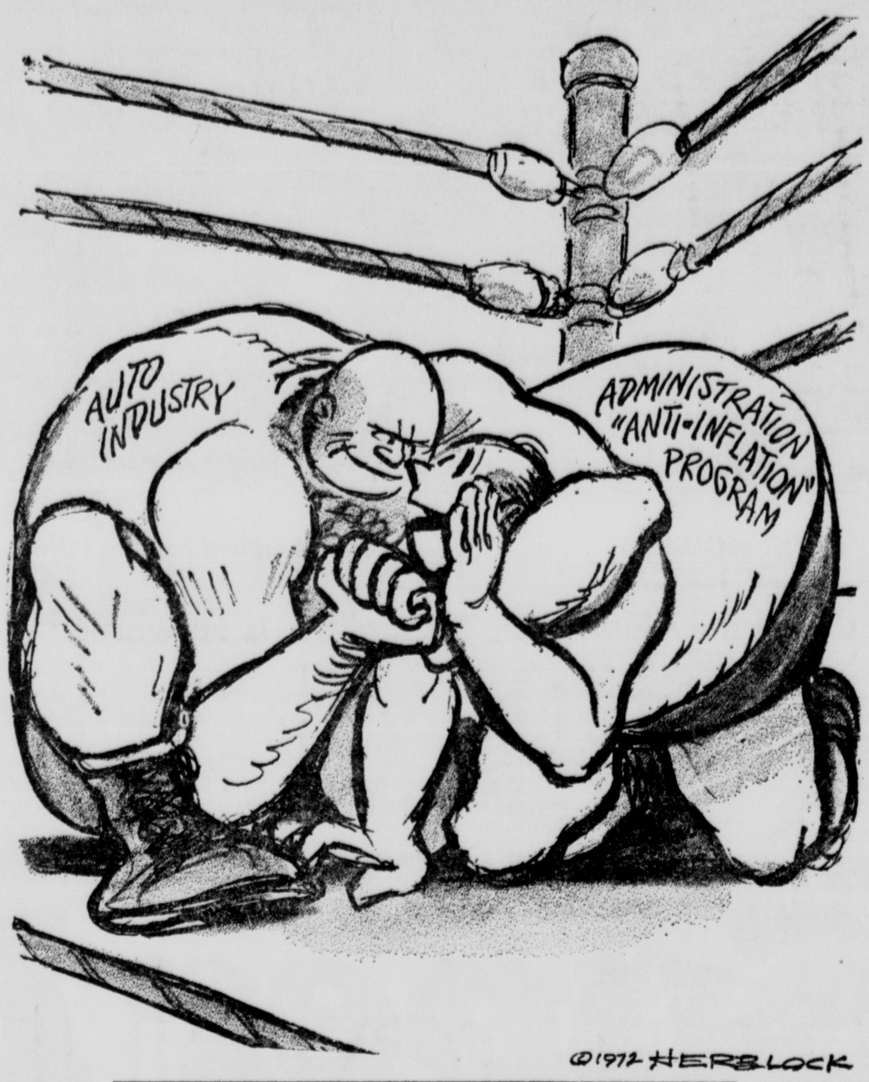

Nine African countries have announced that they will boycott the Munich Games to protest Rhodesia's participation, and more may follow suit.

The United States may have plenty of trouble winning medals, however. Since 1968, the level of competition in most Olympic events has improved substantially. "If the Morning Line odds are any indication, the U.S. will come out of Munich this summer with even less than Neville Chamberlain got," Esquire asserted.

But the city of Munich already is a winner. It now has badly needed modern sports facilities, a vastly improved transportation system, and new parks and housing — all built over the past several years in anticipation of the Olympics. For Germany's fastest - growing city, the 1972 Oktoberfest begins in August.

Proud Father

Lincoln, Neb.

"Just a song at twilight, when the lights are low, and the flickering shadows softly come and go . . ."

Here my throat tightens and I wink quickly lest tears spill down my cheeks, tears at the very precious times along life's way . . .

There was the glory of the moment when a nurse placed a blue bundle in my arms and I looked upon the sleeping baby — my son. I felt his tiny fingers tighten about mine and just then he opened bright blue eyes and smiled. Later I held another bundle wrapped in pink, my baby girl. Her wide blue eyes looked soberly up and she went back to sleep. She knew she was safe in my arms.

Teaching them to talk and their little feet to walk was untold joy. My love for them overwhelmed me for they were my life. Watching them grow was like a garden of flowers with the fragrant bright colors.

School took them into new worlds. They had Bible stories in their Sunday school classes and took part in programs. They were so proud of this and so was I.

Time flies on swift wings. They have grown, living their own lives, having their own families. I sit on the sidelines, asking nothing, but am glad when I can be part of their activities.

So I move into the twilight of my own years and day by day, one by one see those of my generation being called to walk in green pastures beside the still waters. My cup of love for my children runneth over. I shall be content if God blesses them and walks always beside them.

Summer Memories

Ansley, Neb.

Summer memories from childhood . . .

Sleeping late in the mornings . . . helping to shoo the flies out of the house with towels . . . cloth or paper fringe tacked at the top of screen doors to frighten the flies away . . . spraying the cows before milking and even then, being whacked in the face with the cow's tail . . . bat flies stinging an animal, and the wild gallop around the pasture . . .

In the evenings, going after the cows in the farmost corner of a draw in weeds grown high . . . We are grateful that flies don't have jamborees any more as they did in days gone by.

Churning was such a chore. In the summer it took the cream so long to gather. One churned and churned and churned. We didn't have ice then.

It was nice to go directly to the windmill for a drink of water. The water was just right. In the middle of a hot afternoon, we would take Papa a drink of fruit juice, and sit under an old cottonwood to rest from the walk.

The fresh home-made ice-cream we had when we brought ice back from town . . . We beat the ice up in an old gunny-sack and used rock salt to freeze it. We made a good custard with plenty of eggs, whole milk, sweet cream and sugar and vanilla, and it was good.

Drying corn was a real battle, too. Flies were attracted by the sweet smell of the corn, even if you cleaned up the mess quickly. Flies seemed to know everything in advance.

These things of yesterday are so very vivid to me today.

As I sat listening to Ms. Jackson, one of the Republican keynoters, I was totally turned off.

She spoke of the "open door" of the Republican party. I was reminded of a song of a few years ago. It went: "This door swings both ways."

Perhaps the Republicans welcoming in disenchanted Democrats should note. There are such things as Republicans for McGovern. I know several.

As one Republican senator said—it's going to be a great coronation, not nomination.

TEAR GAS FUMES

GOPs Best Selling Point Is Nixon's Foreign Policy

By BOB SCHREPF
Star Editorial Writer

MIAMI BEACH — Walking out of the Convenvention Hall in this decaying resort city, after Cardinal Krol's benediction, the participants in the 1972 Republican National Convention coughed their way through a lingering haze of tear gas fumes.

It was the most memorable moment of the convention.

There were other moments.

Richard Nixon, who has been on the Republican national ticket every presidential year but one since 1952, accepted his party's nomination for the highest office in the land for the third time.

That was the crowning act of a convention in which the delegates, in good humor and high confidence, ratified a worthy ticket and anticipated a landslide victory in November that Lyndon Johnson would appreciate.

Spiro T. Agnew and his speech-writers were nominated as the running-mate.

Mrs. Pat Nixon was transformed into a folk heroine and anybody can understand why, if only for the fact that her appearances added a genuine touch to the convention proceedings.

The Republicans boldly suggested that they have broken George McGovern's corner on the youth vote market and proudly proclaimed that their young people will more than match McGovern's in organizational ability. They may be right.

☆ ☆ ☆

But court youth as they did, the GOP turned inward again.

The Grand Old Party will not guarantee a broadened participation in future conventions. Instead, as Vice President Agnew put it, the party will encourage youth, women and minorities to become involved in Republican affairs "by appealing to them as Americans, as human being." That really doesn't mean much if you're young, black or female.

The Republican party made an unabashed pitch for opposition defections unparalleled in recent political history. "Come home . . . ," said the President to the Democrats. "Join our new majority."

The President assured the American people that new Supreme Court justices, in a court already regarded as almost a creature of the President, will "share my philosophy that we should protect the peace forces rather than the criminal forces in the United States." This is an unwelcome promise, if one regards civil liberties as important.

☆ ☆ ☆

The President, in the same theme, talked about law and order and making the streets safe in his speech from the same platform in 1968. And yet in 1972, the Republican convention headquarters at the Doral Hotel was closed tighter than Fort Knox and an army of law-enforcement agencies had to patrol the streets of Miami Beach to keep the peace.

Parenthetically, it should be said that by and large the conduct of the police was remarkably restrained, a tremendous tribute to their professionalism.

From the opening gavel to adjournment, Republicans rose to extol the achievements and direction of President Nixon's foreign policy—an inconsistent but innovative approach to dealing with world realities which in terms of promise for the future may be without equal in all of our history. It is the Republican party's best selling point in the campaign.

☆ ☆ ☆

Except for Vietnam.

That small but angry swarm of young people who stung and ran over the last two days of the convention was in Miami Beach to remind the President of the record over the past three and one-half years. Around 20,000 American dead since the President's plan was put into action and the killing still continues — not American lives being lost, but lives, nevertheless.

The record contradicts Mr. Nixon's lofty pronouncements about preserving America's honor that is not recognized in Indochina.

President Nixon has taken the sting out of the involvement in Vietnam, but he has not resolved what many people consider a moral issue.

That was what the lingering haze of tear gas fumes was all about.

The real protectors of America's honor, admittedly a pretty motley crew, had taken off for the hotel district when the police let the tear gas cannisters fly.

The delegates, fresh from witnessing the coronation, coughed, wiped their eyes, and cursed the empty streets.

MILAN WALL

Sophistication Lacking

Milan Wall

Perhaps among the most ironic things about the Republican stage show in Miami Beach this week were the repeated references to the allegation that George McGovern does not represent the "real" Democratic party.

That's ironic because it's been coming from the same folks who support a GOP president for things they'd be ready to hang a Democrat for.

Who'd believe that the same people who are looking to Agnew in '76 would be praising a president who instituted socialistic wage and price controls, cavorted with communists around the world, pushed Congress to institute a government hand-out plan for the poor and withdrew from a fight we could easily have won with a few small H-bombs?

The Republicans who lived it up in Miami Beach don't look at it that way, of course, and neither do I.

But at the same time, it's been obvious to me all week that I see things less and less like the Republican delegates and the leaders of the Grand Old Party.

☆ ☆ ☆

Perhaps the most disgusting hour all week was the speech by the conservative darling himself, who two years ago, as the President's right-hand man, was traveling around the country as the nation's biggest hate-mongerer.

It was Agnew, the man who this week was blasting away at the Democratic nominee for dividing the nation up into blocs, who was more than willing in 1970 to attempt to do that and more to insure a Republican victory in the congressional elections.

Appealing to man's basest instincts is not, as I see it, the call of political office. But that appears to be the way too many politicos look at things when it's convenient.

Not that dividing people is necessarily a bad way to go about solving some things.

Dividing people is what the political game is all about. The parties try to divide people all the time . . . into their supporters and their opponents. And they'd like to count more of the former than the latter.

But that doesn't, as I see it, give them a free ticket to go about misrepresenting either themselves or others.

If we assume that the very basis of politics, and indeed of a representative democracy, is our ability to disagree, to engage in idealogical conflict, then at least it ought to be done with some sophistication.

☆ ☆ ☆

I was somewhat enlightened the other night, listening to the convention, when I heard a congressman from Illinois tell about an incident outside Convention Hall in which police used excessive force.

The congressman said he had seen policemen beating a downed demonstrator with nightsticks, long after the protester could have offered any meaningful resistance or caused further trouble.

A television newsman asked the congressman if he thought relating the incident might hurt him, especially since he had already suffered from some intra-party flack because he was too liberal.

And the reply was that although he was not suggesting that the incident should be interpreted as characteristic of police reaction during the convention, he still believed he had the obligation to tell the truth.

We need more people like that in public office.

We need fewer people like those in Miami Beach who were promoting commitment to other things . . . the people who hoped it meant something to the American people to see a bevy of Hollywood stars parade across the podium, for example, or those who carefully saw that the right minorities were in the right place at the right time, and then lashed the Demos for making a determined commitment to see that those folks were really involved.

☆ ☆ ☆

The sad thing about it all is that Nixon and the Republicans may be right.

Americans may be more interested in hearing another of John Wayne's meaningless tributes than thinking seriously about whether Nixon has really "brought us together" as he'd promised, or done a dozen other things as he'd promised.

But Nixon and the Republicans apparently believe that bringing us together means mouthing platitudes about new majorities after four years, and overlooking the fact that the Republicans have done as much to divide us, for the wrong reasons, as the Democrats or anyone else.

Perhaps McGovern is not representative of the "real" Democrats this year, but there are no more sound indications that Nixon is representative of the "real" Republicans, either.

The "real" questions now, in fact, aren't even related to those considerations.

They strike closer to concerns about who will do the best job of leading us toward meaningful solutions to the problems that plague us at home and the world's citizens abroad.

The Republicans may even have some powerful arguments on their side when they deal with guestions like that, but it'll take more than what they showed us in Miami Beach this week to bring to those arguments the sophistication they deserve.

TOM WICKER

Republicans Pursue The Pattern Of All Politics; Black Becomes White; Nothing Is Something

MIAMI BEACH — You understand, of course, if you've been watching television from Miami Beach, that President Nixon has put an end to the war in Vietnam — "so bloody, so costly, so bitterly divisive," says the Republican platform, when he came to power.

But then you also understand — surely you do — that anyone who wants us to get out of Vietnam on any terms other than Nixon's is "bemused with surrender." In fact, although Nixon already has ended the war in the prologue of the platform, in the very same prologue the Republicans declare that the nation's choice this year is one between "negotiating or begging with adversary nations."

You really have to hand it to Nixon and the Republicans. Here at Miami Beach, they have shown themselves past masters of some of the finest political arts — having it both ways, turning black into white, and making something out of nothing. These techniques are in the finest American political tradition, Democratic as well as Republican, and can only be admired by connoisseurs.

☆ ☆ ☆

With what matchless cool, for instance, the platform deplores the undeniable fact that before Nixon zoomed off to Peking, "the isolation of the People's Republic of China, with one-fourth of the world's population, went endlessly on." No voter could suspect from such chiseled prose that either the Republicans or Nixon ever had anything to do with that wicked isolation, and that is what politics is all about.

Moreover, this is the "open-door convention" of the "open-door party." Every convention speaker has managed to suggest what a splendid contrast this makes to the rigidly controlled Democratic convention of last month. Nothing is said, naturally, of actual results in the admission of young people, women, blacks; who needs to know the facts?

The open door does not, naturally, extend to Republican convention headquarters at the Doral Beach Hotel. There, a prominent sign proclaims: "This hotel is closed to the public," and the security men, some with menacing bulges under their jackets, others with Graustarkian jackets and caps, swarm like the Nixon youth that are bused from rally to rally here. But this fortress mentality (and Nixon is not even in residence at the Doral) does not surface in the righteous "open door" rhetoric; the people aren't entitled to know EVERYTHING.

Speaker after speaker warns here of the profound threat to the free enterprise system posed by the extremists said to have stolen the Democratic party from rightful heirs the Republicans seem to consider remarkably virtuous. These speakers do not say who imposed wage and price controls on the economy, or whose policy failures made those controls more or less necessary. But let us not ask too much of fallible human beings.

Let us not inquire, for instance, how the Republicans can defiantly declare their flat opposition to "programs or policies which embrace the principle of a government-guaranteed income," when only three years ago Nixon became the first American president to propose a program embracing precisely that principle — his once-vaunted family assistance plan. Pat Moynihan, rest in peace.

And it's reassuring, isn't it, that the open-door party also vowed to "continue to defend the citizen's right to privacy in our increasingly interdependent society?" It may, of course, be unfortunately true that the Nixon administration has heretofore boasted of its wiretapping and bugging policies, which ultimately had to be curbed by the Supreme Court, but perhaps this is nit-picking. Watch what we say, not what we do, or vice versa in some cases.

And what fair-minded man would try to make a connection between the Democrats troubles with organized labor and the fact that this year's Republican platform promises a continued search for "realistic and fair solutions to emergency labor disputes" — in sharp contrast to the 1968 plank on which Nixon was elected, which said emergency strike legislation was "imperative?" Everybody is entitled, after all, to grow and mature in office; no politics in that.

Of course, the open-door party and its Pesident are "irrevocably opposed to busing for racial balance." And though it may seem superficially contradictory, they also "strongly oppose the use of housing or community development programs to impose arbitrary housing patterns on unwilling communities." But, really, nothing could be more logical, because if you don't want to bus black kids into white neighborhoods, you certainly don't want their black families moving in next door.

It's that kind of thing that makes the Republicans and Nixon what they are. Come to think of it, it's that kind of thing that makes American politics.

Kaiser To Buy Soviet Aluminum Production Knowhow

©The New York Times

Washington — The Kaiser Aluminum and Chemical Corp. has signed an agreement to purchase technological knowhow and licenses from the Soviet Union to manufacture aluminum at reduced costs, a Soviet trade official announced Thursday.

The Kaiser deal — confirmed by a spokesman for the Oakland, Calif. corporation — was the latest in a steadily growing number of quiet, often little publicized, transactions between American companies and Soviet trade organizations, dealing in technological processes, as distinct from goods or commodities.

Usually, the Russians are the ones buying the technology and knowhow from the Americans. But to an increasing degree, American companies, looking for ways to cut costs in their own research and development, are buying the latest Soviet technology. The trend is most apparent in the metallurgy field.

Boris E. Kurakin, a spokesman for Licensintorg, the official Soviet buyer and seller of technology, disclosed the Kaiser deal and several others at a joint news conference at the National Press Club, sponsored by the Soviet organization, and Patent Management, Inc., a Washington technology transfer and patent company, which has signed six agreements with Licensintorg.

Soviets Active

The Soviet organization had been active at UNIMART 72, the Washington State International Trade Fair in Seattle, which ended on Sunday. Kurakin said Licensintorg was "moving more aggressively to adapt its operations to American-style technology transfer of knowhow and patent rights.

"The object is to operate under the United States patent system and according to accepted rules and procedures, familiar to American businessmen," he said.

Henry Shur, the president of Patent Management, said the Soviet Union "constitutes the world's largest single concentrated source of high technology with proven industrial results which eliminate the risk of costly R & D efforts for United States industry. The USSR demonstrably excels in many areas of metallurgy, production and fabrication of metals and welding."

Kurakin, in announcing the Kaiser deal, said it should bring in "several millions of dollars" to the Soviet Union over the term of the license — about 12 years.

Under the arrangement, Kaiser will be licensed to cast standard and special aluminum ingots in a way which eliminates ingot "skin" which results when prevailing American practices are used, Mr. Kurakin said.

"This avoids the need for costly equipment and processing steps to remove the cast ingot skin before further working of the ingot, e.g., to roll sheet aluminum," Kurakin said.

Other transactions announced by Kurakin include the following:

—ANDCO of Buffalo, N.Y., has bought a license to manufacture an evaporative cooling system for blast furnaces that will be used in construction of furnaces in Canada. Kurakin said "this Soviet blast furnace system is probably the most advanced in the world." No sale figures were made available either by Kurakin or an ANDCO representative reached by phone.

—The American Magnesium Company of Tulsa, Okla., has signed an agreement to use an advanced Soviet system for the extraction of magnesium at a plant in Snyder, Texas. In a phone interview, John Mezoff, a company vice president, said the cost of the agreement was more than a million dollars for the long-term accord.

—Licensintorg has purchased the knowhow and rights to build cash registers at a plant outside of Moscow based on a model manufactured in West Germany by a subsidiary of the National Cash Register Co. of Dayton, Ohio. Kurakin said Soviet authorities hoped the new machines would begin to be produced later this year, and would eventually replace the ancient abacuses, still used in many stores. Robert S. Oelman, chairman of the company, said in a statement through a spokesman, that the German affiliate would provide technical assistance and give manufacturing and royalty rights.

—Cooper-Bessemer of Mt. Vernon, Ohio, has sold licenses and knowhow to the Russian organization for the manufacture of large gas compressors for transmittingnatural gas. A company spokesman by telephone, in confirming the deal, said it would amount to "multi-millions" in the course of the 10-year agreement. John Kovelan, who negotiated the deal, said the Russians will produce the engines with his company's drawings and technology as well as with technical assistance from American engineers there and in Mt. Vernon.

—The Boeing Corp. has sold the Russians the technical data and knowhow for the manufacture of doors similar to those on the Boeing 727. Harold Carr, a spokesman for the company, said by phone that the agreement was for the entire 727 door and frame assembly, and involved the turning over to Licensintorg the complete set of drawings and the tooling diagrams for the door and the frame. He said the deal was made by a subsidiary, Boeing Associated Products of Seattle.

Bond Sales Hit $34 Million

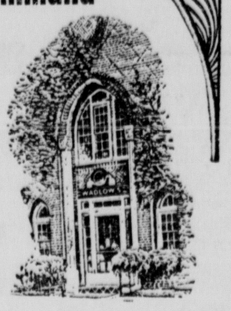

Seven-month sales of U.S. Savings Bonds in Nebraska topped the $34 million mark, according to M. F. Oberg of Omaha, state chairman.

July sales of $4,113,088 pushed the yearly total to $34,224,552, compared with $30,443,009 last year for a gain of nearly $4 million.

Oberg said more than 13,400 employes in the state had enrolled in the payroll savings plan since the first of the year, a substantial gain over last year when 11,500 were added in the seven-month period.

Educator Describes Three Attitudes In Teaching World

By Milan Wall
Star Staff Writer

A Minnesota educator said here Thursday that teachers' inclination to talk about teaching, rather than learning, isindicative of an attitude that sees children as "empty vessels" to be filled.

"That's where most teachers are," said Dr. Howard Y. Williams in an interview.

Williams was in Lincoln to keynote a one-day faculty workshop at Nebraska Wesleyan University on "new approaches to college teaching."

The "empty-vessel" view is part of what Williams termed a environmental approach to learning which assumes a child becomes anything his environment makes him.

As a part of that environment, Williams said, the teacher "acts on him.

Williams said the environmental view is one of the two prominent views which have been operating in the teaching world.

The other, which he described as a "maturation view, is one which assumes "if you don't hedge a kid he'll sort of develop and become mature."

Gaining Acceptance

A third view, and one which Williams said is gaining in acceptance, is based on the work of John Dewey and Jean Piaget.

He said it places "emphasis on learning and the total development of the student," assuming people develop by "interracting in significant ways with their environment."

Williams, chairman of the department of secondary education at the University of Minnesota, also referred to the work of Harvard researcher Larry Kohlberg and his six levels of moral development.

Kohlberg, Williams said, has argued that people go through six stages which begin with a "response to punishment" stage and end with a "motivation by conscience and conceptual rationale" stage.

At level two, people are motivated by a hedonistic approach that says they should do anything which makes them feel good; at level three, they react to reinforcement for good behavior; at level four, they take a conservative stance that sticks to the status quo, and at level five they believe "what is good is that which I can negotiate."

Williams said in that context several things are known about what will facilitate development.

For example, he said, rapid development can be accelerated by reinforcing people at one level above their stage of development.

It's also known, he said, that:

— children of level six parents develop more rapidly.

— the rate of development through the six stages varies with cultures, but all cultures experience the same levels.

— to move through the stages rapidly, children need challenge, negotiation and experience in dealing with conflicts.

— children need opportunities for role-taking and decision-making.

Since different people are at different stages, said Williams, "you can't treat everybody the same in a class."

But he also said most college students are "status-quo oriented" (level four) and need to move into the negotiation stage.

That indicates, he said, that college students would be better motivated by a system in which they could negotiate contracts for what they want to do in their college careers.

Williams, who also serves as president of the Minnesota Association of Higher Education, is co-author of the book "College Faculty View Themselves and Their Jobs."

RETURNS WITH RANSOM

School Door Will Open Despite Veto

Bellevue (AP) — President Nixon's veto of a $30.5 billion appropriation bill which included "impact aid" money won't affect the opening of school in Bellevue, Supt. Richard Triplett said Thursday.

Impact and is designed to assist communities in which large government installations have produced population growth while taking property off the tax rolls.

About 80% of the students in the Bellevue School District are federally connected. The district expects at least 8,400 such students this year, most from Strategic Air Command families.

In the past, impact aid has provided nearly half of the district's budget.

About $1 billion in impact money was in a Department of Health, Education and Welfare and Department of Labor bill.

Dr. Triplett said President Nixon's objection wasn't to the impact aid portion of the bill. The total appropriation, Triplett said, had exceeded the President's budget recommendation.

Regardless of the outcome of the current proposal, Bellevue will get some impact aid because Congress already has authorized partial funding, be said.

Under the vetoed proposal, the cost of educating a student would be established at a little more than $500

School districts in which more than 25% of the students live on federal installations would receive full reimbursement for those students. They would receive 77% of the established cost for federally-connected students not living on installations.

Bellevue schools will open Sept. 5, Dr. Triplett said. A new appropriations bill is to be drafted after Labor Day.

Addressograph-Multigraph's Ohio Plant In Jeopardy?

Cleveland, Ohio (AP) — Addressograph-Multigraph Corp. officials said Thursday they couldn't predict whether they would close down their Euclid, Ohio, plant after opening a new plant in Lincoln, Neb.

The company recently received zoning approval for a manufacturing plant at Lincoln's Air Park West that will produce electronic office equipment still on the drawing board.

Officials said the Euclid plant now employes 2,200 persons in the manufacture of mechanical and electro-mechanical equipment.

Officials said the Euclid plant is outmoded and expensive to operate but that the company is seeking new electro-mechanical products to put in the plant.

However, Frank H. Woods, chairman of the company, said later in Chicago the firm definitely will continue operations in Euclid.

He also said the decision to build in Lincoln was unrelated to the town's being his home.

"We ran out of space at the Mount Prospect, Ill., plant, headquarters for the Multigraphics Division," he said, adding that Euclid is headquarters for the Addressograph Division and "has nothing to do with Mount Prospect operations."

Woods also said there is no substance to reports the firm may move its headquarters out of the Cleveland area.

The company has purchased 227 acres in Lincoln for a 200,000 square-foot plant that will go into operation in the late spring of 1973.

Two hundred fifty persons will work in the plant by fall of 1973 with an estimated annual payroll of $2 million, officials said.

The Babbit Road plant in Euclid is AM's major manufacturing facility, a company spokesman said. The plant was built in 1933, and it produces addressing and embossing machines as well as duplicating and data recording equipment.

The company official said there is a declining market demand for addressing and embossing machines. He also said product lines at the Euclid plant were not growing as fast as other lines.

AM said last week it would close down two of its Cleveland plants by October 1973, both of which produced typewriter and computer ribbon, as well as carbon paper products and machine inks.

Educational Aid Commission Slates Meet On Court Test

The chairman of the Nebraska Commission for Higher Educational Aid announced Thursday a meeting will be held in Omaha Sept. 6.

William Dobler of Lincoln said the purpose of the meeting will be to meet with legal counsel and establish the means of getting the law creating the commission into the courts for a constitutionality test.

The law was passed by the Legislature this year and if declared valid, would aid students attending private institutions of higher learning.

The program encompassed in the law would specifically make available funds to pay the difference between tuition rates charged by public and private institutions.

The law was passed by the Legislature with the understanding that it would be tested in the courts before being fully implemented.

The meeting of the commission is scheduled to be held in the Woodmen Tower Building, room 945, beginning at 2 p.m.

Petticoat Revolt Creates Female Gang Leaders

London (AP) — A petticoat revolution in organized crime is producing a new breed of women gang leaders and urban guerrillas, a British security expert says.

Women gangsters are "as ruthless or more ruthless than their male counterparts," Peter Hamilton told an international conference of private detectives at Brighton, England, on Wednesday.

Hamilton, a security firm executive, said women had carved out a leading role in Britain's underworld and in guerrilla organizations in Britin, the United States and Germany.

"There is no area of criminal violence today in which women are not involved — not as camp followers but as operators, planners and commanders," Hamilton said. "From the security point of view, we can no longer assume that women are the gentler sex."

Hamilton claimed that the women gang bosses do not shrink from violence, and added: "Women are among the strongest an most daring members of the Irish Republican Army."

Bronx Landlord Charged With Grand Larceny

New York (AP) — A 35-year-old man was charged Thursday with collecting $2,256 in rent and security during a 10-day period last month from 13 different persons who wanted his Bronx apartment.

One of the 13 who answered a for-rent ad in the Amsterdam News, a Harlem weekly, complained to the district attorney's office, and a subsequent investigation turned up a dozen others who claimed to have been fleeced.

The advertiser, Lepolin Duncan, was held in $1,500 bond in Bronx Supreme Court on three counts of grand larceny and 10 of petty larceny.

Growth Policies Are Discussed

A symposium on "Regionalism and National Growth Strategies," sponsored by the School of Environmental Development at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, was held Thursday at C. Y. Thompson Library on the East Campus.

The symposium was attended by planners from governmental agencies, private firms and from the University.

Programs considered such topics as direct state action in land use and environmental protection, planning and control; federal regional development; sub-state planning and alternative models for non-metropolitan areas; British growth policy as it might be relevent in the United States, and proposals for a national growth policy.

LTS Board Okays 2 New Bus Routes

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

Two proposed bus routes are one step closer to reality following the Lincoln Transportation System (LTS) Board's endorsement Thursday.

The LTS board recommended City Council approval of the proposed West A-UP and Crosstown runs and the proposed time schedules. A public hearing on the routes held Tuesday saw only two people appear, both testifying in favor of the proposals.

If approved by the council the new routes could be operational Sept. 11th.

The West A-UP route would run from the West A area north to Gaslight Village and the Union Pacific Industrial Tract, while the Crosstown route would run from 48th and Adams to 48th and Pioneers Blvd.

In other action the board turned down a request from the Lincoln Airport Authority to extend bus service to the Terminal and General Aviation area. The authority expressed interest in providing service for airport employes.

However, LTS Board chairman Bob Campbell said if service were extended to the airport at this time, the West A-UP route would be overextended, although he emphasized that the "door is not closed" on the proposal.

With the construction north of the airport of Addressograph-Multigraph's manufacturing plant which would employe 250 people by fall of 1973, board members agreed that future bus service to the area may be warranted.

In other action the board is bringing back bus tokens—on a six-month trial basis.

If approved by the council, 20 tokens will be sold for $5 and 40 tokens for $10, at a discounted 25-cent ride. Standard fare is 30 cents. Distribution would be made through business outlets.

LTS general manager Gerald Rae reported that 160,000 of the quarter-sized tokens are on hand, which were left by National City Lines the former owners of the bus system. Rae said one side of the token reads "Lincoln City Lines" with "Good for one School Ride" printed on the other.

The board also discussed, but took no action on, other changes in the fare structure, including punch tickets, coupon books, monthly passes and bulk purchases of tokens by large businesses and schools.

The board agreed to try the token system first since the bus system will be able to keep track of the number of riders using the new system.

The board also discontinued the 45-cent zone fare being charged on the Arnold Heights run.

Campbell said that National City Lines had tacked on the 15-cent surcharge when the Arnold Heights run was first initiated. The Arnold Heights run is the only route in which a zone fare still is being charged, he said.

Ridership on that route is expected to jump considerably, since school bus service to the area is being discontinued. Rae said the average number riders on that route have been 22 a week, but with the additional school children ridership is expected to jump to 50 a day.

In order to charge the standard 30-cent fare Monday, the first day of school, the board is recommending that the City Council approve the fare change Monday and make it effective immediately.

The board's action eliminating the 45-cent fare is in line with its "no zone" policy, Campbell stated.

Refreshments To Provide Driving Break

Highway safety will be the goal of organizations throughout the state during the Labor Day weekend when they operate free refreshment tables at rest areas along the Interstate.

Beside offering free coffee and soft drinks to refresh travelers, the groups will be urging motorists to drive with special care.

The State Department of Roads says it is a "proven fact that taking frequent breaks while driving is a life saver. It gives the driver the opportunity to unwind and avoid highway hypnosis caused by prolonged driving at high speed."

The governor's traffic safety coordinating committee has released the following schedule:

Sept. 2-4
All hours at the Mella Hill rest area, sponsored by the Omaha Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Sept. 2
10 a.m. until 6 p.m. at the Milford rest area, sponsored by the Nebraska Women for Highway Safety.

Sept. 4 (Labor Day)
8 a.m. until 8 p.m. at the Milford rest area, sponsored by the Antelope Park Church of the Brethren youth group.

East and westbound rest areas at York, sponsored by the York Immanuel Lutheran Church youth group.

1 p.m. until 5:30 p.m. at the westbound Darr rest area, sponsored by the Cozad Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Brady rest area, sponsored by the Gothenburg Junior Chambeer of Commerce.

2 p.m. until 8 p.m. at the Gibbon Interchange, sponsored by the Gibbon chapter of the Mrs. Jaycees.

Any other groups wishing to participate in this year's Labor Day safety campaign can contact the Roads Dept.'s district engineer in their area.

Lancaster Child Care Services Meeting Slated

The board of directors of Lancaster Child Care Services has scheduled a special meeting for Sept. 7 to consider the approval of a fiscal management system and by-laws.

Executive Director Tom Shim told the board the target date for opening the first 10 child care homes is "mid October." He said the home selection committee is "in the process of establishing criteria by which home operators can be chosen."

Shim said persons interested in operating home day care centers should contact him or any other of the board members.

In other business, the board approved a bid by the J. J. Exon Co. for equipping the service's office in the Lincoln Center Building. Total cost will be about $3,500.

Police Probing Clothing Theft

Lincoln police are investigating the theft of $835 worth of clothes from a car belonging to Vicki Zook of 1916 No. 32nd late Wednesday night or early Thursday morning.

Police said the articles were removed while the car was parked between R and S on 26th.

Evolution Study Legal

The last existing state law against teaching of evolution was expunged in 1970 when Mississippi's Supreme Court ruled unconstitutional that state's anti-evolution statute.

Statue Stolen

This is the mate of a statue valued at between $100 and $150 which was stolen from the University of Nebraska's Howell Theater at 12th and R late Thursday afternoon. University police said the statue weighing between 40 and 50 lbs. may have been stolen as a prank but they are still investigating the theft. (Star Staff Photo.)

Man Asks For Moon And Gets A Piece Of It

Moscow (AP) —Russia gave Britain some lunar soil Thursday and the British official who accepted it said: "I never thought the day would come when I would ask for the moon and get a piece of it."

The gram of moon dust was turned over to Sir James Lighthill, a former vice president of Britain's Royal Society, by Alexander Vinogradov of the Soviet Academy of Sciences.

The soil was rtansferred in two small containers, each with one-half gram. One sample was from Luna 16 in 1970, the other from Luna 20 of last February. Both were unmanned explorations.

Many Indian Graduates Unemployed

New Delhi (UPI) — A government study shows that more than a quarter of India's university graduates are unemployed.

Many have given up trying to find jobs in the fields they studied and consider themselves fortunate to be bus conductors, mail carriers or taxi drivers.

A study by the Scientific and Technical Personnel Division of the Council for Scientific and Industrial Research, based on last year's census returns shows there are in the ranks of the unemployed 194,000 science, engineering and medical graduates and 385,000 arts and commerce graduates.

Ashok Bose, a commerce graduate who lives in Calcutta, told UPI correspondent Ajit K. Das that for the past four years he has been looking for "any job."

Begged Money

"I begged and borrowed to raise money to go to college," Bose said. "I expected that a degree in commerce would get me a job in an office, but nothing has turned up."

In utter desperation, Bose joined an American-supported Hare Krishna consciousness group, spent a lot of time praying and led a "clean, almost spiritual life." But it didn't get him a paying job.

Bose is the second son in a family whose only income is the 200 rupees ($26) a month earned by his elder brother.

"Perhaps my misery would end if I took to violence or so-called antisocial activity." Bose said bitterly. "I am paying the price of being good in a society that does not care if I have enough to eat."

Prabhakar Joshi, 24, a law graduate, told UPI correspondent Olga Tellis in Bombay he has been job-hunting for the past three months and "the situation is desperate."

Joshi said he had tried for a job as a bank clerk, but too many other applicants were "better qualified."

"Everyone wants a person with experience, but how can I get experience if I am not given a chance to work?" he asked, echoing a time-worn complaint.

"People say you need influence to get anywhere and I just don't have any influence," he said glumly. "The only consolation is that there are thousands of others like me."

Couldn't Find Job

Narain Thampi, 22, a liberal arts graduate from the southern state of Kerala, could not find a job at home so he came to Bombay, India's largest city.

"I have run out of money," Thampi said, partly because he must send fees in with his applications for state and central government jobs.

"These sharks even want to collect money from unemployed people like me," he said. "Everytime I go for an interview I must have a clean shirt. These things cost money but no one seems to realize it or sympathize. At the interviews there are unending queues and then you get turned down. It is very frustrating."

A spokesman for the Maharashtra state government told Miss Tellis that much of the unemployment among the educated is due to the fact that "there are no orientation programs of vocational guidance."

He said there even is a shortage of applicants for some jobs and cited the need for draftsmen, diemakers and air-conditioning and refrigeration mechanics.

Many graduates probably would be happy to have such jobs had they been trained for them.

"The present educations setup was produced by the British," Dr. Satyendrz Nath, senior vice chancelor of Calcutta University told Das in an interview.

The county levy was down two mills from last year's levy of 13.828, while the school levy was up two mills from the 54.853 mills set last year.

Most of the county levy drop was the result of increase in total valuation of the county due to new construction and increasing values on existing properties.

Suit Brought By Chrysler Is Dismissed

Lancaster County District Court Judge Sam Van Pelt has dismissed a suit brought by the Chrysler Corp. against the State Motor Vehicle Licensing Board.

Van Pelt said the firm failed to comply with a state statute requiring the filing of a $500 appeal bond within 10 days of a board decision.

Last May, the board denied the firm's application to approve a non-exclusive agreement with Al Pimper Motors of Fremont to sell Dodge trucks in Washington, Dodge and Saunders Counties.

Chrysler's suit contended the laws involved were unconstitutional and exceeded state police powers.

Van Pelt's order said the bond was a "jurisdictional requirement" and ruled his court had no jurisdiction since the law had not been complied with.

Circuit Court Delays Ruling On Busing

Cincinnati, Ohio (AP)—The 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals said Thursday it will not rule on a controversial Detroit area school busing plan until after classes begin Sept. 6, thus staying an order to bus students between Detroit and 52 suburban school districts.

After a day of hearings, the court took under advisement an appeal of a federal court order requiring the cross-district busing. This action effectively stays any busing plan or bus purchase order for Detroit area schools.

The busing order by U.S. District Court Judge Stephen Roth would have required Detroit school officials to buy 295 buses before school opened and would have required the state of Michigan to pay for them.

Chief Judge Harry Phillips said a motion to dismiss the buss purchase stay, delivered by a lower court, was overruled pending a final decision on the appeal by the 6th Circuit Court.

During the hearing, a federal judge questioned whether a new federal antibusing law might not permanently halt court desegregation orders.

CENTENNIAL CELEBRATION CONTESTS . . . featured a water fight with a ball hung from a cable, left, and a hose lay match in which teams raced to knock over a target ball.

Lincoln Fire Department Proves Efficiency In Centennial Celebration Contests

By JIM DeCAMP
Star Staff Writer

The Lincoln Fire Department proved its efficiency to approximately 750 people attending the first day of the three-day centennial celebration Thursday night.

Not only did they make a near clean sweep of all the contests, but the people were able to see how firemen go into action when there is a real emergency.

A man had fallen down a stairway a short distance away. The firemen who had seemed to move so fast during the contests doubled their speed.

Men were jumping onto already moving trucks rushing a resuscitator to the victim. The man was not seriously injured but was taken to a local hospital for treatment.

The rescue began at 8 p.m., two hours after the start of the tournament on 12th St. between N and O.

Lincoln was challenged in five events by five other departments: Omaha, Hallam, Malmo, Southeast and Southwest Rural Districts.

The first event, won by the Lincoln Fire Department, was the Church Climb. Contestants had to climb a ladder 24-feet straight up in the air and touch the top rung with both hands. The race was run with three-man relay teams.

The Hose Lay, also won by the Lincoln team, consisted of connecting two lengths of hose, attaching it to the truck, placing the nozzle on the end and knocking down a target ball located 120 feet away from the truck.

The Lincoln department was also the winner in the Hose Replacement contest The three-man team had to replace the middle section of a charged 2½ inch hose and hit the target ball.

Lincoln also bested the other departments in the Clothing Drill. The contestant was placed sock footed in the driver's seat of a truck. He then had to leave the seat, going around the truck dressing in protective clothing in a special order.

The final event and the only one not won by the Lincoln firemen was the Water Fight. A ball was hung on a cable which was stretched between two wreckers a half block apart.

Three-man teams then had to push the ball with a stream of water to the opponent's goal.

This event was won by the Malmo Fire Department. It was the only event they entered and are generally considered to be one of the best water fight teams in the state.

The crowd seemed to enjoy the show even when they were accidently sprayed once in a while by a wayward hose.

The only person to really get drenched, beside the participating firemen, was a television photographer Bob Mehnike and his $6,000 camera who happened to be standing directly behind the target ball when one of the teams opened up with their hose.

High Court's Ruling On Defenders Questioned By Adams Co. Attorney

Hastings (AP) — A recent decision by the U.S. Supreme Court that attorneys must be provided for persons facing jail sentences on conviction of a misdemeanor could lead to the appointment of defense attorneys in all misdemeanor cases.

The president of the Nebraska County Attorneys Assn., William M. Connolly of Hastings, said he could see "constitutionally that they have gone this far" and the next step would be appointment of defenders in all such cases.

Connolly said he wasn't necessarily happy with the decision. "I don't think it was clear enough, in that it would appear a judge would determine if he would give jail time" before courtroom proceedings.

"At that stage of the proceedings," the Adams County attorney said, "he really wouldn't have the facts to make a determination."

He pointed out that "almost every misdemeanor carries a jail sentence."

The Supreme Court ruling "was not a good, sound legal decision," he said. "A judge should be impartial and pretty much in the dark as far as the facts of a case'" before it is carried into the courtroom.

Problems surrounding the decision boil down basically to a matter of increased funding, primarily in the office of public defenders.

"There are going to have to be additional public defenders," Connolly said. There will be a "heavier burden on prosecutors because there will be more court appearances."

The additional funds "will have to come from either individual counties or there will have to be some funding under the present statewide public defender system," he pointed out.

The Legislature enacted a measure under which district court judges can appoint public defenders, with expenses to be covered from a fund appropriated to the governor for that specific purpose.

However, Connolly said, the Legislature has never appropriated the funds.

Connolly said the matter now is up to each individual county attorney and the attorney general as to what course must be taken.

But he said he is proceeding on a case-by-case appointment with the idea that "the state public defender system will be funded in January."

Most county attorneys, he believes, will await further action until the statewide system is put into effect.

Exon Appoints Potato Officials

Gov. J. J. Exon Thursday announced four appointments to the State Potato Development Committee.

The three reappointments are Roy Ferguson of Alliance, J. Randall O'Bannon of Gering and Louis Knoflicek of Alliance. The new member named is Neil Sakurada of Lyman.

Miss Gretta Hagemann of Lincoln was named to the Developmental Disabilities Advisory Council.

HOME EC BUILDING . . . appreciated by Bernice Ludvik.

New Building Makes Fair More Enjoyable

York — A new $17,000 4-H home ec building at the York County Fairgrounds is making this year's fair a lot more enjoyable for Bernice Ludvik.

Bernice, a 1970 UNL graduate, is in her second year as home ec extension agent for York, Fillmore and Thayer Counties.

"Last year some of the 4-H exhibits were in the old 4-H hall where the food stand is this year, and some were in an old wooden building," she said. "It was all divided, and we didn't have adequate space.

"Well, now we do."

The metal building was just finished last month, according to county extension aide Eugene Bergen. It was financed with funds from Ak-Sar-Ben and the York centennial fund, and earnings of the 4-H Junior Leaders. The York County Agricultural Society "will pick up what isn't paid for," Bergen said.

Besides the new building, the display area has new vertical panels for display of sewing entries, and display shelves salvaged from a grocery store.

"They serve our purposes real well," Bernice Ludvik said. "Totally, it's a much better display area."

York is the third county fair in what has been a busy summer for the young extension agent.

"In the summertime I work with 4-H leader training," she said. "I train them for contests, both in judging and demonstrating. We have demonstration contests, song contests and dress revues. It's mostly getting ready for the fairs."

In the winter Bernice conducts workshops and adult training meetings for home extension clubs, working with fellow agent Mrs. Clara Lawson.

379 Signatures Added On Rate Hike Protest

Mrs. Bonnie Hibler delivered an additional 379 signatures of people in southeast Nebraska protesting a recent rate adjustment by Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph Co. to the State Railway Commission Thursday.

In a open letter to the commission, Mrs. Hibler said the additional names brings the total number of protest signatures to 3,879 representing people in some 100 towns served by LT&T.

Mrs. Hibler made her formal objection to the rate hike at an August meeting where she presented an estimated 3,500 signatures to the commission. The rate hike was granted in July on an emergency basis to maintain rate uniformity in the state between LT&T and Northwestern Bell.

Mrs. Hibler, a candidate in the November election for the Unicameral seat held by Sen. Jerome Warner of Waverly, also questioned a statement made by the commission at the hearing indicating that only licensed lawyers could speak on behalf of others.

The Unadilla housewife said it leads her "to wonder if it is your intention to discount the almost 4,000 protest signatures which I have delivered to you.

"If so, this would seem to violate the spirit of openness and free play which has characterized our democracy . . .

"I hope you will treat it with the seriousness which it deserves as you deliberate and attempt to come to your final conclusion on this outrageous rate hike," she concluded.

State Fair Stock Exempt From New Rule

Amended brucellosis and auction market regulations to be implemented September 1 do not apply to livestock entered in 4-H competition at the Nebraska State Fair, officials said.

Dave Williams, Extension 4-H livestock specialist at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, issued the clarification after conferring with Dr. Norman Kruse, State Veterinarian.

A news story carried earlier this week referred to certain backtagging and testing procedures for brucellosis in cattle. Among other provisions, the regulations announced by Dr. Kruse stipulate that cattle to be sold to dealers or to private individuals must be tested at the time they change ownership

Williams urged 4-H exhibitors, leaders and parents to consult health requirements in the 1972 State Fair premium book covering the 4-H division. These requirements are still in effect and are not affected by the newly announced rules, he said.

In another development, NU Extension dairyman Phil Cole emphasized that as 4-H exhibitors read the Class "R" (4-H) health regulations, they note that "all dairy animals over 20 months of age must have a negative blood test within 30 days of the show."

A record number of animals are entered in both the 4-H beef and dairy shows at State Fair. The dairy show is scheduled Thursday, August 31; the beef show on September 4-5.

Mrs. McCloskey Sues Husband For Divorce

Redwood City, Calif. (AP) — Citing "irreconcilable differences," the wife of Rep. Paul N. "Pete" McCloskey, R-Calif., filed for divorce Thursday in San Mateo County Superior Court.

The couple separated June 8 after 23 years of marriage.

Caroline McCloskey, 43, sought custody of their two children, John, 16, and Kathleen, 13, as well as support for herself and the children.

Contested property included residences in McLean, Va., and Black Mountain in Santa Clara County, Calif.; stocks, bonds, and three cars, including a 1929 Model A. Ford.

The couple was married Aug. 6, 1949 in Altadena, Calif.

McCloskey was an unsuccessful candidate for the Republican presidential nomination.

Cars 'Speeding' Before Collision With Fire Truck

Council Bluffs, Iowa (AP) — The two cars involved in a fatal accident with a Council Bluffs fire engine early Thursday "had to be going well over the 30-mile-an-hour speed limit," Asst. Police Chief George Jorgensen said.

One person was killed and three were injured in the 12:34 a.m. accident. The accident occurred at an intersection as firemen were responding to a car fire, police said.

Dead on arrival at a local hospital was Dave Dale Steward, 21, Treynor, Iowa. He was alone in the car.

The driver of the second car, Merlyn R. Avis, 22, also of Treynor, suffered minor injuries and was held for observation at Mercy Hospital, officials said. He also was alone in the car.

Fireman Richard E. Scott, 40, suffered a skull fracture and was listed in guarded condition at the hospital. Scott has been in the department for nine years.

Jeffry L. Stivers, 33, driver of the engine, received cuts and bruises and was treated and released at the hospital, officials said.

DIRECTIONS:

BEAVER LAKE IS 50 MILES EAST OF LINCOLN ON 73/75. WATCH FOR THE SIGNS!

After two of those rum-in-a coconut things, I confided in the bartender that I was seeking sunken treasure.

"Doubloons. Pieces-of-eight. Solid gold church candlesticks as tall as a man and such bric-a-brac."

Well, he said, I had come to the right place.

"All those old time people come to this place, sah. Keep the money in the warehouse.

"All these warehouse Danish. Neutral territory. British captain he stop outside the harbor and he look, look, look. But he don't come in."

☆ ☆ ☆

A brisk tropical rain swept over the streets of Charlotte Amalie on the island of St. Thomas, U.S. Virgin Islands.

It blew right in the bar. I was banging off one of those duty-free, home-grown rum-and-ambrosia drinks. The sky was dark, and the light faded in the old pirate alley.

The bartender was jet black. When he opened his mouth, his teeth shone like a set of sugar loaves.

☆ ☆ ☆

A great treasure trove was taken off Norman Island during the early part of the century.

Some say it was Captain Kidd's. Some say it was Blackbeard's — the fearful Edward Teach who married 17 ladies. Edward was mighty careless of his girl friends. Losing one here and murdering one there. So he kept the supply up by a lot of marriages.

Anyway, neutral Danish Virgin islands were headquarters for the Brotherhood.

They stacked their plunder in the great stone warehouses along these little alleys.

☆ ☆ ☆

In 1917, America bought the Virgin Islands from Denmark for $25 million. (There are 48 American Virgins and 32 British.)

Things rocked along splendidly. The Virgins had been French and Spanish as well as Danish. They were used to change.

Then came the cruise ships. Then the airplanes. Then the jets — three hours from New York.

Immediately the imported "Continentals" (the island word for somebody from the U.S. Mainland) began remodeling the warehouses.

They made little curio shops.

Since it is a free port — no duty — they brought in Scotch and sold it at ridiculously low prices. They sold London gin cheaper than you ever find it in London. They brought in French perfume and Danish silver and German cameras.

This stuff sold like wild to the tourists. And the only memory of the free-booting days was on shop names and rum drinks: Blackbeard Punch — "drink two and you marry 17 women."

☆ ☆ ☆

You fly over to St. Thomas from the jet airport Puerto Rico.

The sea is sparkling blue below.

It is less than an hour. Flights go over every day from San Juan, returning in the evening. You can bring back $200 duty-free from the American Virgins.

☆ ☆ ☆

Splatters of rain dripped through the doorway. St. Thomas is warm all year round. If there's a door on the bar, it is because they have it air-conditioned and want to keep the cool air in.

He slit another coconut, as deftly as Blackbeard once slit up a surplus wife. He said the place to look for treasure was "where dose tern birds fly." The terns, he said, hang around treasure. Guard it.

Immediately I got out the guide to birds in the Virgin Islands. I found there are all kinds of terns: Rosy terns; Sooty terns; Noddy terns.

There is also the Least tern and Royal tern. And probably the No U-Tern, for we're all getting modern down here in the Virgin Islands.

Health Group OKs Recommendations

By United Press International

The State Advisory Council on Comprehensive Health Planning Thursday approved a set of recommendations proposed by a steering committee for the massive Nebraska Health Project, but left the door open for further modifications.

The action was taken on the suggestion of the council's executive committee. The committee made the recommendation on a 7-1 vote after an executive session Thursday morning from which the press, as well as the public, was barred.

The two-pronged motion means the approximately 150-page report, which contains more than 150 recommendations on virtually all phases of health care, will become the basis for implementing a state health care delivery system.

However, the council's action also provides that all interested parties will have 120 days to submit comments, recommendations or suggestion of modifications to the original document.

John Sahs of the State Comprehensive Health Planning Office, director of the Nebraska Health Project, later explained the end of the 120-day period will mark the completion of the first cycle, and the advisory council will meet again to consider the proposed modifications.

"That will be published as a composite of revised recommendations," he said.

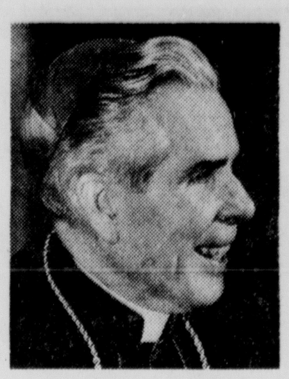

Then, he said, another cycle will begin in which interested parties will have another 120 days to study the revised document, and the review process will again be undertaken.

"You never really close the book on an item of this kind," he said. "We intend to publish it as a looseleaf notebook that is continually revised."

The steering committee recommendations were accepted after a two-hour discussion on the report.

Archbishop F. J. Sheen

Marian Day Will Feature Bishop Sheen

Archbishop Fulton J. Sheen will be the speaker at a Marian Day for Peace Mass and rally at Pershing Auditorium Oct. 8, according to Most Rev. Glennon P. Flavin, Bishop of Lincoln.

Msgr. John J. Flynn, V. F., pastor of St. Mary's Church, is general chairman of the rally. Other clergy members appointed by the Bishop to serve on the planning committee are Msgr. Clarence Crowley and Frs. Thomas Holoman, James Dawson and Ivan Vap.

The Marian Day speaker is a nationally renowned clergyman. He gained fame in the 1950s through his weekly telecasts: "Life is Worth Living."

"We hope that men and women, young adults and children, whatever their religious beliefs, will attend this event and join in a prayer for personal and world peace," Bishop Flynn said.

In 1950 in Uniontown, Pa., Archbishop Sheen spoke before one of the largest audiences ever to congregate for a single event. More than 150,000 persons gathered to hear him celebrate a Byzantine Mass in a prayer for the conversion of Russia. It was the first ever offered in English by a Latin Rite priest, and was broadcast worldwide by the Voice of America.

Archibishop Sheen is now the Archbishop of the Titular See of Newport in Wales, Great Britian.

5 Nebraska Delegates Get Scare

Miami, Fla. (AP) — Most of the Nebraska delegates to the Republican National Convention apparently escaped the rough stuff being dished out by demonstrators outside the convention hall.

Five Nebraskans got something of a scare Wednesday night, however, when their bus was stopped by demonstrators who deflated the tires.

Mr. and Mrs. George Ehrhart of Omaha were on a bus headed for the convention Wednesday evening. Despite the vehicle being re-routed three times, demonstrators stopped it, it was reported. Also aboard the bus were Mrs. Carolyn Bargman and her two teen-aged children.

The incident occured near a police line and the five Nebraskans escaped the unruly crowd without injury, sources said.

A check of the Nebraska delegation showed nearly all of those in attendance had planned ahead: they arrived at the convention site early. Some of them reported they didn't see any demonstrators.

Earlier in the week one Nebraska delegate, John Everroad of Millard, reported being shoved around by demonstrators as he tried to enter the convention hall. Witnesses said when the Nebraskan was knocked off his feet, his wife wasted no time in discouraging the protesters with the business end of an umbrella.

The Nebraska delegation was expected to return to Omaha late Thursday night, it was reported.

FHA Loans Topped $46 Million

The Farmers Home Administration (FHA) in Nebraska loaned more than $46 million to 6,500 rural families during the fiscal year completed July 1, according to figures released Thursday.

More than $25 million in farm loans and about $9.5 million in other commercial credit went to 2,939 farm families, said K. L. Bowen, state director of the FHA.

In addition to farmer programs and rural housing, Bowen said FHA funded 14 rural water and sewage projects at a cost of $4.8 million.

The loans are available to eligible applicants unable to secure needed financing at reasonable rates and terms, said Bowen.

Reported Lack Of Combines Apparently Not Widespread

Reports of a shortage of combines in the major wheat-growing areas of Nebraska during the harvest season appear to have been the result of growing concern that many custom operators are planning to quit the business. Apparently, there was no areawide shortage this year.

Marx Koehnke, chief of the Wheat Division, State Department of Agriculture, believes that larger machines and fewer acres of wheat permitted under government crop programs have discouraged custom harvesters from expanding their operations.

"The wheat sale to Russia could help, particularly if we are permitted to grow more acres of wheat as a result," he said. "We were in pretty good shape this year, but there is real cause for concern over the future if custom combining isn't sufficiently profitable to encourage more operators to stay in business and to replace present operators as they retire."

Holly Hodge, a Holdrege area wheat farmer, explained that the big problem this year was weather conditions. "It either rained or the humidity was so high you could not cut grain," he said. "It gets pretty expensive for a custom operator if he has a large operation consisting of several combines, trucks and a cook shack. He can't afford to sit around to wait for it to dry out. He has to move to an area where he can cut grain, so there were operators who did not stay in some areas long enough, but I don't know of any widespread problems."

Hodge cited the Kimball area as an example of the kinds of problems both custom harvesters and wheat growers experienced.

"The grain matured much slower than forecast in Banner and Box Butte counties as well. This tended to cause custom operators to move through these areas to South Dakota, where cutting was under way," he explained.

Asked about the quality of equipment, Hodge said: "Most of it is brand new. The machines are much larger, so you don't need as many of them. Most operators own from three to 10 of the $25,000 machines. Add in the trucks and other equipment and you can see why they don't hang around when it rains."

The huge investment is the main reason that most wheat farmers depend on custom harvesters to cut their crops.

"You can't use a machine enough days to pay to own one," Hodge said. "You could buy a combine, a smaller model than today's machine, for $2,200 after World War II. Today some cabs cost that much."

Many wheat farmers do maintain a single combine, often an older model, to harvest small crops or fields that mature late or early and are of little interest to the custom operator. However, very few harvest their entire crop without help.

The harvest season begins in Texas in May and the big machines, trucks and crews gradually work their way north, ending up in Canada in late September.

REJECTS CHARITY . . . George Gibson, 90, can care for himself.

Man, 90, Says He's Able To Take Care Of Himself

Omaha (AP) — At 90, George Gibson assures charitable-minded people he is quite capable of taking care of himself.

Gibson has assured an official of South Omaha Speaks that he is happy in his independent life, despite some charitable offers from the organization and neighbors who said they were worried about him.

True, there's not much paint left on the walls of his home, outside or in, but "I'm 90 and I won't last too much longer, so it doesn't seem worthwhile to paint," Gibson said.

He said his monthly Social Security check takes care of groceries and taxes which are about his only expenses.

He said he doesn't use electricity because he frequently retires early and cooks his meals on an old-fashioned pot-bellied coal stove.

For amusement, he plays a violin, reads the newspaper and tends his large garden. The son of one of his neighbors cuts the grass and Gibson pays him in sweet corn from his garden.

He has lived alone since his wife died 14 years ago. They had no children and have no close relatives within the area and visitors are few.

"I'm kind of by myself," he said, "I'm not much for fixing."

State Housing Authority Idea Gets Cool Reception

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

A legislative committee studying Nebraska's housing needs greeted a draft proposal establishing a state housing authority with cool skepticism Thursday.

The proposal would establish a public corporation, not under the direct control of the state, which would issue revenue bonds in order to finance new housing for low and moderate income families. The draft was forwarded by Arthur Goldberg, a vice-president of a Wall Street investment firm, and Miss Janice Griffith, an attorney for a New York law firm specializing in financial law.

Goldberg admitted two areas of potential legal difficulty — the public corporation concept and a constitutional prohibition limiting the state to no more than $100,000 in debts. These he said confidently, could be successfully ironed out in a test case before the Nebraska Supreme Court.

However, Sen. Fred Carstens of Beatrice asked Goldberg what assurance the taxpayer would have that these housing developments would not eventually join the ranks of blighted housing.

"The federal government has been one of the prime contributors to urban blight," Carstens said.

"In these developments, the supplier is getting full price. The real estate firm is getting its cut.

"The purchaser and the taxpayer are being hung while everybody in between gets a cut."

Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff added, "Why should the state intervene when the federal government has almost pre-empted the field?"

Goldberg answered that "income gaps" exist in the current federal housing programs leaving some families ineligible because in one project their inome is too high and in others it is too low to qualify. The state housing authority would fill this gap, he said.

Then Sen. Herb Duis of Gothenburg asked where would the state get the money to finance such an agency.

There is an "unlimited source of money," Goldberg responded, for a housing authority on the tax exempt bond market. Similar authorities have been established in 20 or 22 other states, he reported.

Another problem Duis envisioned was how Nebraska's tax structure — specifically the property tax structure — would have to be altered. The problem, he said, arises that people have more trouble paying the additional taxes than the loan itself.

"That's why we're trying to shift some of the burden to sales and income taxes," Duis said.

Revised Inspection Approach Planned

By DON BEMAN
United Press International

State Motor Vehicles Director John Sullivan unveiled Thursday a new approach to Nebraska's inspection program designed to promote a feeling of cooperation with owners and operators of inspection stations.

"We know that each of these 2,200 station operators cares very much about his customers and about highway safety," Sullivan said. "We also know there will be mistakes."

Thus, he said, a new approach has been developed which includes a training program for the estimated 9,000 mechanics involved in the inspection phase, along with standard procedures for handling "mistakes."

"We think the operator has not only the right to expect cooperation and help from us, but the right to know exactly where he stands if something does come up concerning his work," the director said.

However, said Sullivan, while the approach was developed around the concept of being reasonable and helpful, it does not represent a move toward leniency.

He cited as an example a portion of a form letter developed for use in replying to those applying for station permits which says: "Those few who will not measure up to these reasonable standards will find our field manager recommending revocation. I will revoke those stations where the facts so indicate."

Sullivan said the new approach resulted from an evaluation of the total inspection program, prompted in part by questions raised during this year's session of the Legislature.

"We feel they had some justifiable criticisms," the director said, especially when it came to uniformity in both inspection standards and the procedures for handling enforcement problems at the operator level.

"From now on, only in the case of a flagrant violation will a permit be revoked on the first violation," Sullivan said.

Station operators will be generally allowed two "mistakes" or complaints. On the third violation, however, revocation would result.

Even at the point of revocation, Sullivan said, no uniform procedure was in effect previously on handling reinstatement of operator permits.

Under the new procedures, he said, generally a reinstatement would be considered after 60 days.

On the training front, Sullivan said a Tuesday meeting has been called to consider a proposed program which he said is headed for an October operative date.

The meeting, he said, will involve members of the vehicle industry as well as those connected with traffic safety.

Once in operation, the training sessions will be conducted under the guidance of the 12 field representatives, who otherwise spend their time inspecting the work of the stations.

4-H LEADER . . . Broeder, left, and Kerwood, their club to climax re-run.

4-H Clubs To Stage Pony Express Re-Run Along Old Alphabet Railroad

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Alexandria — In commemoration of its centennial, the old "Alphabet Railroad" is in for an unusual party Saturday.

Five 4-H clubs along the old line, noting that it closely parallels the Pony Express route, are staging a 38-mile re-run. The stops will be Alexandria, Belvidere, Carleton, Davenport, Edgar and Fairfield—only backwards.

The first of some 40 riders, girls as well as boys, will leave Fairfield at 8:30 a.m. The rain-or-shine schedule calls for anchor man Dave Kerwood to gallop into Alexandria at 4:10.

"Even though it's in reverse, we felt Fairfield should be the starting point since it was our club which organized the event," said F. W. Stahnke, leader of the Clay County 4-H Wranglers.

Riding mostly in one-mile relays, the riders will pass along a pouch containing specially marked souvenir letters. An evening picnic at Davenport will climax the run.

Making distinctive mile markers for Alexandria's segment was Hugo Broeder, Sandy Creek Club leader. He himself was a riding captain in the Pony Express' own centennial run of 1960.

Other clubs participating are from Edgar, Davenport and Bruning. Mostly following country roads, the riders are scheduled to be in Edgar at 10, Davenport at 11:40 Carleton at 1:20, and Belvidere at 2:40.

As towns all along the line have noted in their summer centennials, the "Alphabet Railroad" was started in 1872 as a portion of the old St. Joseph and Denver City Railroad Continuing northwest out of Marysville (Kan.) and Fairbury, is chose to name alphabetically the towns it founded.

According to rail buffs, a portion of Burlington trackage west of Lincoln is the only other instance known anywhere of such designation. Olenville and Hastings were also part of the St. Joe system, though neither town is involved in the re-run.

Under several identities through the years, the line has been owned by the Union Pacific since the early 1900s. For many years before it was known as the St. Joseph and Grand Island.

Youngest Bank Chief Prompts Second Look

Center (AP) — A personable young man with a pleasant smile and sharp clothes introduces himself as a bank president and people look a second time.

As far as Keith Crosley has been able to determine, he is the youngest bank president in the U.S. He celebrated his 22nd birthday in March.

"I have checked with the American Bankers Association and they said they don't keep records for such things," Crosley said.

Getting the job was a combination of good and bad luck.

"My father (Elmer Crosley) had been cashier and the man running day-to-day operations of the bank for several years. It has been owned by area men except for a couple years in the late 1950s and he kept asking them to sell him the bank.

"Finally in March, 1971, he had a heart attack and they decided to sell him the bank in May."

Just two months later the senior Crosley died and the family was left with a bank to operate.

The president's mother and brother did not want the top spot. Brother Paul is Norfolk insurance agent and Mrs. Elmer Crosley works in the Knox County Courthouse across from the new bank building.

An uncle, John Crosley, works parttime at the bank.

All four Crosleys constitute the board of directors.

Taking over the operation of the Center State Bank has been a "real challenge" for Keith. "It's so different from college it is unbelievable."

There was some community apprehension when the then 21-year-old took over the operation. A motto available to bank customers as a bumper sticker since May, 1971, proclaims the Crosley family slogan "We Try Harder."

Indeed they have. Since the takeover business has increased 30% and no customers have closed their accounts.

Aug. 16 was a red letter day for the operation. For the first time since its charter was issued in 1902, assets surpassed the $1,250,000 mark.

Uncampaign Message: Don't Vote; Leader Opening Office In Omaha

Omaha (AP) — Gene Chapman, the man who brought you the Great Tea Bag Revolt, now presents the following "uncampaign" message: Don't vote.

The plea, he said, is neither a gag nor an unendorsement of this year's political candidates.

Voting, said the founder of the Nathan Hale Society, is simply a way of forcing a person to make a decision, a "disguised coercion."

"The lesser of two evils," he said, "is evil."

Chapman will test the strength of his unpolitical thinking in Omaha this fall.

He has opened the society's "uncampaign" headquarters office in a two-room $70-a-month office at the Karbach Building. There will be a grand opening at 10:30 a.m. Saturday.

The headquarters is crammed with books, stacks of

Gene Chapman

"The Franklin Auditor," the society's newspaper, and boxes of tea bags.

The tea bags are leftovers from a campaign earlier this year when 368,000 were mailed to people who asked for them and thought enough to drop them in the mail with their tax returns. Attached to each bag is a tag asking: "What caused the Boston Tea Party?" Answer on the flip side: "Taxes!"

Chapman said the two-year old society has 3,100 members in 17 states. Their ages range from 15 to 31 and each pays a membership fee of $5. It includes a "one-time initiation fee" and entitles the joiner to a year's subscription to "The Auditor."

The group was formed shortly after young supporters of Chapman met to discuss his defeat as American Party candidate for the U.S. Senate from Missouri in 1970.

"The young people wanted to do something so we decided to launch an educational program," he said.

The name Nathan Hale was adopted because, Chapman said, Hale "was a great educator. His only problem was he lost his head in politics."

At a national convention of the American Party in late 1970, the society won backing as the youth arm of the party, Chapman said. But, the alliance fell apart. Chapman said the party was "too political."

Striking out on its own, the society sought its own members and went looking for followers.

"We looked at various places in the Midwest for an office and liked Omaha. It's more conservative and a place that is better prepared to receive our philosophy than, say, Chicago," he said.

Chapman said the society isn't anywhere on the political spectrum. It appeals to conservatives because it opposes taxes, he said.

It approves of dropping all laws on abortion and drug control although it doesn't approve of the use of drugs. This wins "friends" among the liberals, he said.

Chapman, executive director of the society, believes the less government there is the better things are.

If people didn't vote, there would be no need for government, he said. Replacing it would be a "free society" where people would assume the initiative and events would be decided by an open and free market.

Brandeis Official Claims Price Commission Erred

Omaha (AP) — The Price Commission is wrong in penalizing J. L. Brandeis & Sons, Inc., for exceeding its base period profit margin during the last year, a company official said Thursday

John D. Diesing, vice president and secretary of the department store chain, said, however, that the company is complying with the order because "we support what the commission is doing" to stabilize prices.

A commission spokesman said Wednesday that a plan submitted by Brandeis to reduce prices by $7,055 to make up for excessive profits has been accepted.

Diesing said Thursday the higher profits were due to the purchase of two businesses and the sale of another losing business—not price increases.

"But instead of fighting the commission and going to court, we decided to go along with the order," he said.

He said Brandeis will meet the $7,055 penalty by selling three lines of work pants at half-price. The prices were reduced Tuesday, Diesing said.

The commission source said the reduction will be effective until Sept. 1, but Diesing said Brandeis may continue selling the pants at half-price after that, if the penalty figure hasn't been met by then.

'Strangers' Blamed For Rise In Crime

. . . BY OMAHA POLICE CHIEF

Omaha (AP) — Much of Omaha "is a neighborhood of strangers," Police Chief Richard Andersen said Thursday in reviewing statistics which show that crimes rose sharply in July.

In noting that burglaries increased more than 57% in July over July of last year, Andersen said: "People are just going to have to know their neighbors and report suspicious things they see.

"I'm not saying that every person has to have coffee with his neighbor at 10, 2 and 4, but every person must be able to recognize his neighbors and his neighbors' property."

Andersen said that when police canvas a neighborhood after a burglary, they frequently hear such comments as, "Yes, I saw a truck in his driveway, but I just thought he was moving."

The chief said most of the burglary increase was in residences rather than businesses. "The business burglary rate is stable," he said. Robberies increased from 27 in July 1971 to 75 last month, more than 177%, the statistics show.

Andersen called the increase "phenomonal," and added that it was due mainly to the relative ease with which "small, isolated businesses" can be held up.

He said persons on narcotics desperate for money were factors in the increase.

Larcenies of $50 or more increased from 193 in July 1971 to 421 last month. Andersen said he is studying whatever legislation should be sought to restrict or control private sales, such as garage sales.

"All stolen merchandise has to go somewhere," he said. "And in recent years we have had a tremendous increase in private sales. There is column after column of these sales in every Sunday paper.

"I am not saying that everyone who has a garage sale also steals," he said, "But such sales would be ready outlets for stolen merchandise."

Auto thefts rose from 251 in July of last year to 372 last month, but Andersen said the cleanup of junk autos began last month and there's a good chance some of the junkers were reported stolen after they were towed away.

Guitar Meet Set

The Lincoln Guitar Society will meet Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at 2641½ No. 48th, room 201. Featured will be examples and discussion of "The Art of Flamenco." The meeting is open to the public.

A lingerie shower also was presented to Miss Abrams at a luncheon on Saturday, July 29, when Mrs. James Lantz entertained at her home.

Campus activities throughout the state are gaining in momentum as the beginning of fall semester approaches, and Nebraska Wesleyan University is no exception.

Highlighting the University's schedule of events for fall is the Nebraska Festival of Arts, which will begin on Monday, Sept. 18, and continue through Sunday, Sept. 24. Clyde Sheridan and the Tiapih Society will present a program of Indian dancing and games on Monday, Sept. 18, and also on that day there will be an historical display and a display of guitars by Dale London at various locations on campus.

During the second day of the event, several Nebraska artists, including Richard Terrill of Doane College, Michael Mushaway of the University of Nebraska, and William Evans and James Engeseth of Wesleyan, will present painting and sculpture demonstrations and exhibits. At 8 o'clock on Tuesday evening, soprano Ruth Stephenson, who is a professor of music at Wesleyan, will present a concert at O'Donnell Auditorium.

A classical music discussion, dealing specifically with writing a contemporary opera, will be conducted by University of Nebraska instructors William Wallace and Robert Beadell on Wednesday, and that evening, Dr. Cary Lewis of the Wesleyan staff will direct a piano concert entitled "Gottschalk Extravaganza," which will be presented by five pianists.

The spotlight will then focus on Nebraska Poet Laureate, John Neihardt, who will give a poetry readintg at 10 a.m. Thursday. This will be followed by an informal discussion at 11 o'clock. Also on Thursday there will be a roundtable discussion on which several Nebraska contemporary poets will participate.

Friday will be devoted to country and ethnic music workshops and concerts by Nebraska talent, all of whom will perform in country music programs throughout the day, and participate in an early evening concert.

A reader's theater production, "The Brick and the Rose," by Lewis John Carlino will be presented by an all Freshman cast at 7 p.m. on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of Festival Week and at 2 o'clock on Sunday.

OPEN TRYOUTS . . . for "You Know I Can't Hear You While the Water's Running," the first production of the Lincoln Community Playhouse for the 1972-73 season, will be held at the Playhouse on Wednesday, Aug. 30, and Thursday, Aug. 31, beginning at 7:30 p.m. Written by Robert Anderson, the play is comprised of four one-act vignettes concerning humanity in today's world, and it will open on Sept. 29. Theater director, John R. Wilson, will cast seven male and six female parts and persons interested in backstage work are also urged to sign up during tryouts. Scripts are available prior to tryouts at the Playhouse office.

PAINTINGS BY RICHARD TRICKEY . . . professor of art at the University of Nebraska, will be on display in Gallery C of the Sheldon Memorial Art Gallery from Aug. 29 through Sept. 24. The exhibition is made up of paintings completed this summer.

CHARLIE BROWN AND COMPANY . . . will be on stage at the Lincoln Community Playhouse on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 25, 26 and 27. The Playhouse Youth Guild's production of the popular musical will begin at 8:00 p.m.

ENTRIES ARE STILL BEING ACCEPTED . . . for the Fourth Annual National Art Show to be held Oct. 7 through Oct. 15 at the Garden Valley Motel in Colorado Springs, Colo. The show is sponsored by the Pikes Peak Artists' Association and the Garden Valley Motel, and co-sponsors this year are the Western Arts of America, Irving, Tex.; international artists, Cecil R. WEAL Founder To Talk

Women across the nation will join together on Saturday, Aug. 26, to celebrate their right to vote. That day will mark the 52nd anniversary of the ratification of the 19th amendment to the U.S. Constitution — the landmark amendment which recognized women as voting citizens.

This week has been singled out nationally for many women's rights-oriented activities, although the efforts and progress have been continual. Meetings with top officials, demonstrations, and many other techniques have been used to focus attention on encouragement of the passage of the 27th amendment which proposes to grant women their full and complete rights as citizens, as well as to encourage elimination of discrimination in all public, social and economic realms.

Highlighting the Women's Equality Day activities in Lincoln will be a guest appearance by Dr. Elizabeth Boyer, a Cleveland attorney and the founder of the Women's Equity Action League (WEAL). Dr. Boyer will speak on "The Economic and Legal Status of American Women." Her address will follow a memorial dinner to be held at Hotel Radisson-Cornhusker at 6 o'clock on Friday evening, Aug. 25.

On Saturday, Dr. Boyer will participate in a workshop on job discriminiation during the Nebraska Women's Equality Conference which will take place at the New Paxotn Hotel in Omaha.

The Cleveland lawyer is the author of numerous articles on women's rights found in many varieties of publications, and since 1969, she has been engaged in placing suits against federal contractors who discriminate on the basis of sex.

She also has appeared before U.S. Senate and House committees to protest discriminiation against women in employment and educational opportunities, and has pioneered in efforts to abolish help-wanted advertising which discriminates against women.

In 1972, Dr. Boyer, who has earned advanced degrees from Cleveland-Marshall, Cleveland State, and Case-Western Reserve Universities, was named Cleveland's "Woman of the Year."

The Nebraska Division of WEAL will sponsor the Friday evening dinner. According to Mrs. Carol Poston, president of the state group, the organization has as its purpose the conquering of economic discrimination against women by obtaining equal education and employment opportunities. After a cautious beginning, the organization rapidly grew and has members of both sexes, ranging from college through middle age.

on a tour of the shops

"Variety is the spice of life," or so they say — so on our tour of the shops this week, we decided to vary our technique just a bit.

We sought the 'new' in several stores which are found in various areas of Lincoln, and found out what is what in furniture, boutique items, and shoes.

AT THE BEDROOM

At this shop, which is located in Clock Tower East, we learned that there is a new trend in bedroom suites. The pendulum has swung from the home furnishings saying "We are Mediterranean" — or Traditional, or French or Italian Provincial. The new, refreshing outlook features a blend of those styles, although there is evidence of leanings toward the Italian or Mediterranean. Many of the more traditional styles have borrowed the Italian Provincial charm — the raised look where the piece is not flush to the floor — and the medallions which still are used for accent. All of this reflects a turn to the transitional furnishing and helps to avoid the monotonous period look in the home. Pecan, walnut, or cherry wood are employed to carry out this transitional appearance.

The manufacturers also have come up with new furnishings for the girls' rooms. The change is from the traditionally accepted French Provincial, which has been carried out in a glossy white with gold trim, to the new and attractive decor which features the natural wood look with a brushed finish. The natural grain of the oak remains in the finished product, and shades of orange and green are used for accenting the trim.

Hide-a-beds are fantastic for those unexpected guests, and the Sealy Company has come out with a new, functional hide-a-bed which has a high back for extra comfort, as well as extra thick cushions which give a luxurious feeling as a sofa. One of our favorites features a green and orange floral print in a lovely textured velvet. By the way, we learned at the shop that hide-a-beds are now being constructed so that they can be disassembled for easier moving.

Teenagers often do not like their bedroom to resemble a bedroom — they want to create the mood of an apartment. To solve this problem, we recommend one of the corner units which we found at the Bedroom. These ensembles feature two twin beds which fit into a well-constructed corner table unit — and they allow for much creativity. Our favorite designs included the mod red, orange, and yellow plaid, and the pony print with leather throw pillows.

The home furnishings store also has a new brand of mattress and box spring combinations, called Spring Air. This handmade ensemble contains nine different coil strengths which balance and adjust to your weight for excellent back support.

Although the Bedroom, as its name implies, specializes in furnishings for your bedroom, it also has other home needs, including a new line of family room groupings, lamps, wall decor, and the revolutionary all plastic table. This new idea in home furnishings is perfect for the budget minded, and comes in three styles — cocktail, octagon, and square commode. The plastic table is practically non-destructible; it also is heat and mar resistant — and it is attractive.

AT P. J.'S CORNER

A boutique located adjacent to the University of Nebraska campus, is P.J's Corner and it specializes in perfect finds for the high school or college student and for all persons whose tastes are current with the times.

Everyone loves to dress up the walls of their homes or their room, and we learned that one of the most popular ways to accomplish this is with fish net from P.J.'s corner where we also found a great variety of the ever-popular posters.

Pierced or non-pierced earrings also are in abundance at this boutique. We found hoops, both large and small; beads, wires, and posts in many colors and styles. Turquoise rings also have made their grand return, or so we learned, and they may be had from P.J.'s Corner for a song.

Among the really new items in stock are handcrafted belts for guys and gals alike; glycerine soap which is featured in 12 scents, ranging from cucumber to mint, spice to lime; and the Oscillotron, a chrome shell with a colored ball which can be watched for many enjoyable hours.

Wall plaques in all sorts of materials — and many varieties of design have a great choice at P.J.'s Corner. We particularly liked the glazed dough owls, bears, and birds which are mounted on wooden frames, as well as the plaster plaques which feature Raggedy Ann and Andy and the Holly Hobby creations.

Greeting cards take on a new message at the boutique, and we were particularly fascinated with the party invitations which feature old time pictures on the covers.

Among the other finds at the off-campus shop are candles, candles and MORE candles in all sizes, shapes, and shades, as well as incense.

AT FAMOUS FOOTWEAR

Judging from the many displays at Famous Footwear, the boot is going to be a popular item this fall for both men and women.

For the ladies who like boots there are many styles from which to choose. Personnel at Famous Footwear tell us that krinkle patent and suede will be two of the most appealing fabrics used in boots as well as in shoes. One variation of the krinkle patent boot in either black or white, features embroidered, multi-colored designs on the side of the bootleg. Another boot of a burgandy hue was fashioned of velour fabric with matching krinkle patent accenting the toe and compromising a wide cuff at the top of the bootleg.

One boot that we found particularly attractive was created completely of suede. The shoe and heel of the boot was constructed of rust suede, while a patchwork of red, olive, fuchsia, gold and blue suede contoured the front zipping bootleg.

Predictions for men's boots stress that the harness or stirrup boot, which has been so well liked in the past, will continue in popularity. The harness boot, available in either black or brown, is constructed of a stiff leather. This boot, which has a square toe, is referred to as the harness boot because of two straps, one across the instep and another around the heel, which are joined by brass rings, creating the resemblance to the harness.

Among other boot styles that promise to be big this fall are the zipper boots with the eight inch bootleg that can be worn on casual or dressy occasions and also the front laced waffle-stomper hiking boot of suede that has a heavy leather lining and is comfortably cushioned around the ankle.

Bridge

these hands will test your skill

B. Jay Becker

You are South, neither side vulnerable. The bidding has been:

West	North	East	South
1 ♦	1 NT	Pass	?

What would you bid now with each of the following four hands?

1. ♠ J87652 ♥ J74 ♦ 6 ♣ 982
2. ♠ KJ984 ♥ K82 ♦ 93 ♣ QJ 10
3. ♠ A8 ♥ 74 ♦ 852 ♣ KQ9764
4. ♠ KJ75 ♥ QJ92 ♦ 7 ♣ KJ83

1. Two spades. The notrump bid designates 16 to 18 points, balanced distribution and one or more stoppers in diamonds. However, though partner seems willing to play the hand in notrump, you should be unwilling to do so, for with 6-3-3-1 distribution and only two highcard points you are much more likely to do better in spades.

As a matter of fact, the odds favor North's going down several tricks in notrump, while it is approximately even money that you can make two spades. This is because in notrump your spades may turn out to be worthless, while in a suit contract they are sure to pull considerable weight and produce a sizable bundle of tricks.

In the sequence shown, two spades is a weakness bid. In effect it states that there is a better chance of making two spades than one notrump. It strongly urges partner to pass.

2. Three spades. Here, game is just around the corner — since you possess 10 high-card points — and you apprize partner of the good news by making a jump response of three spades. You plan to pass if partner's rebid is three notrump or four spades.

3. Three notrump. Nine tricks in notrump are much more likely than eleven tricks in clubs, and you therefore go directly to game in notrump. It would be tactically wrong to respond three clubs, for while this response would be forcing it would also be pointless.

4. Two diamonds. You must naturally think in terms of game with 11 high-card points facing a 16 to 18 point overcall, but with 4-4-4-1 distribution, notrump is not very appealing.

The best way of finding out whether partner has four spades or four hearts — which would make a major suit game a much more attractive proposition than a notrump game — is by making a cuebid in diamonds. The intention is to raise North to four if he responds two hearts or spades, and to raise him to three notrump if his response to the cuebid is two notrump.

Abby: your own opinion is the answer

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Please, be the judge in this controversy: When a woman is told, "You think like a man"—is that a compliment or not? Sign this . . .

"A WOMAN WHO THINKS LIKE A MAN"

DEAR WOMAN: It's a compliment only to a woman who thinks a man's thinking is superior to that of a woman's.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing to relate two separate incidents and would appreciate your opinion.

The first incident: My husband was driving down a busy city street when he noticed a box in the street which apparently had fallen out of someone's car. He stopped and picked it up. It contained 12 freshly laundered white shirts. The owner's name was on a slip inside, so my husband immediately went to a phone booth and tried to locate him. There were three people by the same name, so my husband called all three. The last one was the man who had just lost his laundry. My husband drove (out of his way) to the home of the man, and he rang the doorbell. The man came to the door, took the box, said, "Thanks Buddy," and shut the door.

Incident Number Two: Last week my young daughter and I were getting out of our car in a shopping center when she noticed a woman's billfold on the ground. I picked it up and saw that it had money and credit cards inside. I took it immediately to the parking lot attendant and turned it in. I left my name and phone number.

I went back later and asked if the lady who lost the billfold ever got it back. He said she had. I then asked if he had given her my name and phone number. He said, "Yes." End of story.

Sometimes I wonder, Abby. Does it pay to be honest?

HONEST OR STUPID

DEAR HONEST: In the above cases honesty didn't "pay" except in the currency of honor and self respect. If that isn't enough for you, then honesty does "not" pay. The choice is yours.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "LIED AND REGRET IT": Tell him the truth. Not because you think he will find out anyway (he may not) but because you will feel better if you do. But it's not necessary to give him the names and numbers of all the players.

Problems? Trust Abby. For a personal reply, write to ABBY, BOX 69700, L. A., CALIF. 90069 and enclose a stamped, addressed envelope.

McGovern's Position On Vietnam Attacked

Atlanta (UPI) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers Thursday sharply attacked Sen. George S. McGovern's Vietnam position, claiming it amounted to "unconscionable" abandonment of South Vietnam to secure a peace agreement with Hanoi.

By contrast, President Nixon has made clear he will not desert Saigon, Rogers said in a speech prepared for a dinner of the American-Hellenic Educational and Progressive Association (AHEPA).

The Secretary of State did not specifically mention the Saigon government nor its President, Nguyen Van Thieu, but spoke in general terms of President Nixon's determination to see that the South Vietnamese had the opportunity "to determine their own future."

This appeared to leave open the possibility that Nixon might be willing to see a change in the composition of the Saigon government so long as he was confident it retained the strength to determine the country's future without Communist domination.

Rogers did not mention McGovern by name, but he made clear his remarks were directed at the Democratic presidential nominee's foreign policy positions.

"We are being urged by some now to quit — to refuse to give any further support, economic or otherwise — to throw up our hands — to abandon the people of South Vietnam — to forget all that we have said as a nation, and to foret all they have done as a nation," he said.

Rogers also told the members of AHEPA, an organization of Americans of Greek descent, that the United States intended to continue providing military assistance to Greece, despite its slow progress towards constitutional government, because of that country's strategic position on the southern flank of NATO.

"Soviet activity, military and political in the Mediterranean has sharply increased in recent years," Rogers said, and the United States and its allies "must continue to give serious attention to maintaining and strengthening our defense in this area which is so important to the peace of the world."

Coach Still Eternal Optimist On K-State Chances

. . . WILDCAT COACH OUTLOOK TEMPERED BY REALITY OF BEING IN BIG EIGHT WITH HUSKERS, SOONERS, 'BUFFS

Manhattan, Kan. — Kansas State football coach Vince Gibson is a self-proclaimed eternal optimist and no one who has ever been in his presence would ever argue with his self-proclamation.

But even Gibson's optimism is tempered by the reality that the conference in which his Wildcats must compete contains Nebraska, Oklahoma and Colorado.

"We're gonna have a good football team at Kansas State this year," Gibson told the touring Big Eight Skywriters in the same southern drawl that has stayed with him even though he's been gone from the South for five years. "But Nebraska and Oklahoma had the two best football teams in history last season."

Eternal Optimism Criticized

The Kansas State coach admitted that he often is criticized for his ever-present optimism. "But I believe players play the way you coach them," he adds. "And I believe we're gonna have a good team. And I want my players to believe that.

"We're gonna be a lot better than we were last year because we got a great quarterback in Dennis Morrison. We've got good running backs in Don Calhoun, Isaac Jackson and Bill Holman.

"We've got a great tight end in Henry Childs. We've got a very good offensive line and we've got a good defensive team."

Gibson says his two primary concerns are in his defensive secondary and a lack of speed among his receiving corps.

"But our biggest problem," he says, "is that Nebraska and Oklahoma were the best teams ever last season. Even Colorado, the No. 3 team in the nation, couldn't compete with those two.

"The rest of the conference has a long ways to go to catch those two. If those two are as good or better than they were last year, then the rest of us have got a long ways to go to catch up. If they're not as good, then some of us might get 'em."

Huskers To Miss Tagge, Kinney

Gibson sees some ray of hope in losses suffered by last year's Big Three.

"If Nebraska's got a problem," he points out. "They've got to miss Jerry Tagge and Jeff Kinney. Colorado has got to miss Jerry Claiborne (CU defensive coach last season who now is head coach at Maryland).

SPORT SIGNALS

☆ ☆

By Hal Brown

"He's one of the best coaches in the country. And Oklahoma has to miss Jack Mildren. But they've got everybody else back."

Gibson says one of the goals at K-State this season "is to play well against them (Nebraska, Oklahoma and Colorado) and get one of 'em.

"It's hard to say that we're gonna beat one of 'em, but our players aren't scared of them."

Gibson's optimism even filters down through his assistants.

'Morrison Best K-State QB'

Take offensive coordinator Don Powell, who says, "Dennis Morrision is the best all-around quarterback we've had at Kansas State.

"We've got something that Lynn Dickey (former quarterback) never had. We've got the best receivers we've ever had. And up front in the offensive line, we've got six guys better than any I've ever had.

"We're gonna be a team that will pass first and run second, but we've got what it takes to have a good running game with Jackson, Calhoun and Holman in the backfield."

Defensive coordinator Joe Madden, who came to K-State from Iowa State last spring, says he's tried to incorporate the best of the Iowa State defense with the best of the K-State defense.

"We've tried to simplify our defense," he points out. "A confused football player can't be an aggressive football player.

"We've got a physical football team and we want them to be aggressive. We're going to put some people on their butts."

Quarterbacks 'Coming Along'

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Nebraska's football team continued two-a-day drills Thursday as the coaching staff added more plays to the Huskers' arsenal.

"We've probably put in about 95 per cent of our offense and I'd say about 80 per cent of our defense," said head coach Bob Devaney. "We've put in a lot of stuff and the team is starting to catch on.

"Our theory is to get everything in and concentrate on certain things for certain teams," he explained.

Although Devaney said the team was becoming "a little tired," he added that two practice sessions are slated for Saturday. A morning drill initiating the kicking game and an afternoon scrimmage at 2 p.m. are scheduled.

He said that the Friday afternoon workout will be without pads after a morning session with pads.

While Devaney said he only briefly reviewed the films from Wednesday's scrimmage, he added that offensive backfield coach Mike Corgan said I-back Don Westbrook had one on his better days.

"We felt that while there's still room for improvement, our quarterbacks are coming along," Devaney noted. "Terry Luck still shows he hasn't been around as much as our other quarterbacks and Runty (Steve) had a good day."

He added that although Dave Humm, who has the inside track at the starting berth, failed to have a superb effort, he really "didn't have a bad day."

Devaney said Thursday's light rains failed to hamper the coaching staff's efforts at gearing the defending national champions for the Sept. 9 opener at Los Angeles against UCLA.

"The rain really didn't bother us that much today," Devaney said. "We worked on some new plays and reviewed others."

Senior fullback Bill Olds, who has missed several workouts this week with a pulled leg muscle, is expected to participate in Saturday's scrimmage, Devaney added.

Ritch Bahe, a sophomore from Fremont who is bidding for a wingback position, sustained a bruised shoulder and probably will be sidelined until next week, the Husker boss added.

Wanted: NU Pen Pals

By The Associated Press

The Nebraska national champion football team is known for its far flung football fans.

But football officials at the school were surprised recently when they received a letter from a 17-year-old Osaka, Japan, schoolboy asking for a pen pal from the 1972 Husker team.

The youth, Hirotashi Tsuzinaka, wrote, "I think it will be wonderful for young people in the world to exchange letters by sports with one another."

Hirotashki's wish was fulfilled when defensive tackle Bill Janssen volunteered to write to the youth, who will also be sent a package of autographed pictures and posters.

In his letter, Hirotashi said he was "Rather short for a football player," explaining he was 5-8 and 130 pounds.

Addition Ready

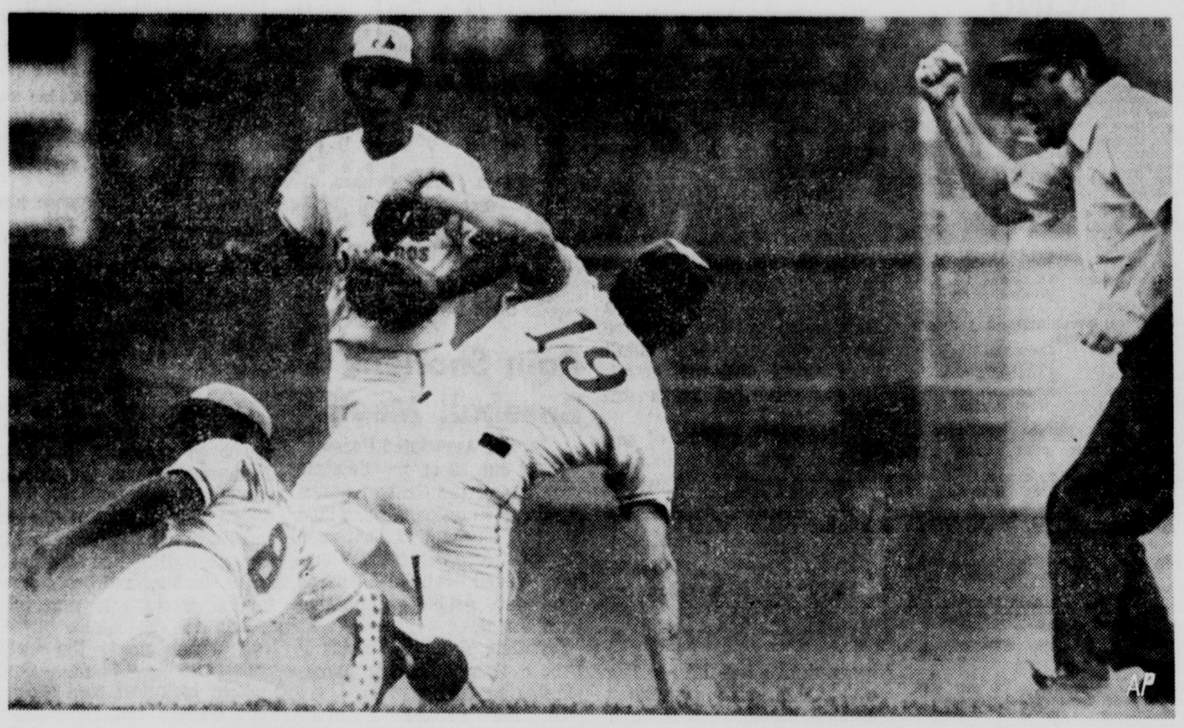

James Pittenger, University of Nebraska ticket manager, said Thursday it appears all of the new seats in the south end zone of Memorial Stadium will be ready for the first home game Sept. 16.

However, said Pittenger, that doesn't mean there are any tickets available for gate purchases.

"The UCLA game (at Los Angeles) is not a sellout at this time and we still have tickets," he said, "But all other games — home and away — are long since sold out."

The end zone addition will offer 9,400 seats over the stadium's previous 67,000 capacity.

Brewers, Texas Split Twin Bill

. . . BENCH COLLECTS HOMER

By The Associated Press

The Cincinnati Reds opened their National League West lead to eight full games over Houston Thursday, defeating the Montreal Expos 6-0 behind the six-hit pitching of Jack Billingham in the only NL game on an abbreviated baseball schedule.

The only other major league action Thursday was in Milwaukee where the Brewers and Texas Rangers split a double-header. Texas won the first game 4-1 and Milwaukee captured the nightcap 4-3.

Billingham's shutout was his fourth of the season and evened his record to 10-10. Ernie McAnally, 2-14, was Montreal's loser.

The Reds got started against McAnaily in the second inning when Johnny Bench led off with his 29th home run of the year.

Cincinnati added two unearned runs in the fourth when the Expos committed a pair of errors and finished up with three in the fifth on run-scoring hits by Bobby Tolan and Darrel Chaney and Hector Torres' second error of the game.

Texas scored three unearned runs in the first inning to beat Milwaukee in the first game of their doubleheader.

Mike Paul and Pete Broberg combined for the six-hitter and Frank Howard homered for the Rangers.

In the nightcap, Dave May drilled a two-run homer, tying the score, and then beat out an infield single with two out in the eighth inning, delivering the winner as the Brewers gained the split.

Dalton Jones drove in all three Texas' runs with a bases-loaded double, giving the Rangers an early 3-1 edge.

Air Of Optimism Felt On UCLA Campus

. . . RODGERS COUNTING ON HARMON, McALISTER AND NEW PLAYING SYSTEM

Los Angeles (UPI) — There is an air of optimism on the UCLA campus as the Bruins approach the 1972 football season, although Pepper Rodgers has installed a new system of play and numerous new faces dot the lineup.

The feeling is that any change has to be for the good after a 2-7-1 season that was only partly salvaged when the Bruins played their cross-town rivals, the University of Southern California, to a 7-7 tie in the final game of the campaign.

The offense-minded Rodgers has installed the wishbone formation and he thinks he has the manpower to make it work. Two newcomers to the varsity will have to come through if the Bruins are to enjoy any success against some of the most powerful teams in the nation which fill their schedule.

The men Rodgers is counting on are quarterback Mark Harmon, son of Tom Harmon of Michigan fame, and running back James McAlister, who is coming off NCAA probation which kept him from playing last season or participating in spring practice.

"To say we have question marks is putting it mildly," commented Rodgers, whose first season as UCLA's head coach was a disaster. "But I feel better about things that I did last year."

Harmon appears to be an ideal wishbone quarterback. The junior college transfer is an excellent runner, an able passer and appears to have the makings of a good field leader.

And Harmon will be backed up by Rod Scribner, a quarterback as a freshman but a defensive back last season. Scribner is rugged and runs hard.

McAlister was one of the most sought after prep players in the country and an outstanding performer as a freshman. He has been compared to O. J. Simpson in his ability to break away for long runs.

If McAlister has to be brought along slowly as the running threat, the Bruins have such proven runners as Kermit Johnson, Randy Tyler and Gary Campbell from last year's team to fall back on.

It is Rodgers' aim to pass more from the wishbone formation than does Texas, which made that style of play famous. And UCLA has some excellent receivers in Brad Lyman, Terry Vernoy, Reggie Echols and Mike Clayton.

The interior line has a number of returning lettermen including center Randy Gaschler, guard Russ Leal, guard Gene Clark, and tackle Bruce Walton.

Defensively, the Bruins appear strong in the secondary with Allan Ellis, Alan Lemmerman and Jim Bright back. But the line will be inexperienced. Punter Bruce Barnes and placekicker Efren Herrera both were outstanding last season.

But the first three games of the season will be real tests for the Bruins as they meet Nebraska, Pittsburgh and Michigan on consecutive Saturdays.

"We've got to be realistic," says Rodgers. "Opening against Nebraska, the national champions, with an inexperienced team makes it doubly tough. But we'll see what happens."

After those big three foes, the Bruins open their conference schedule against Oregon Sept. 29 and then meet Arizona, Oregon State, California, Washington State, Stanford, Washington and conclude with the University of Southern California.

NU Ticket Director Admits 'Oversight'

By MIKE JOHNSON
Star Sports Writer

Three Beatrice couples received promises for season tickets to the University of Nebraska home football games after rendering a complaint to Gov. James J. Exon that they believed membership in the Touchdown Club was mandatory in receiving the NU ducats.

The unnamed couples sent in applications for the tickets last Jan. 1 with about 10,000 other persons. On July 14, they were notified that they could have the tickets for $172.50.

The tickets sell for a cost of $72.00 with a 50 cent charge for handling. A charge of $100 for a sustaining membership in the Touchdown Club was included.

Along with the July 14 notice was a letter saying that the couples could retain the tickets only if they paid the Touchdown Club membership fee.

According to Jim Pittenger, Nebraska ticket director, the extra charge was because of what he termed an "office oversight."

The ticket order received from the Beatrice couples was typewritten but on the top of the order the words "potential Touchdown Club member" were inscribed in handwriting.

Pittenger said that the "potential Touchdown Club member" received priority in obtaining football tickets as specified in a list of priority situations previously released by the ticket office.

If a person is designated in the above manner, he will be sent tickets after he has paid the Touchdown Club membership fee. If, however, he does not remit the charge, his order is accepted or rejected according to the date received.

Since the Beatrice order was received Jan. 1, it was accepted on that basis irregardless of the failure to pay the fee.

Pittenger said that a Touchdown Club membership is not necessary to obtain NU tickets. He also emphasized that membership in the club did not insure the member football ducats.

The NU ticket director said that football tickets along with an explanation of the Touchdown club letter was mailed to the Beatrice couples.

Mustangs Eye Contest Against Kansas City

Omaha (UPI) — Coach Jim Maxfield put his Omaha Mustangs through a scrimmage this week in preparation for the Saturday night game with the Kansas City Steers at adjacent Council Bluffs, Iowa.

The Steers, who lost only one regular season game last year, beat the Mustangs twice in 1971.

Ecoffey, Lee Win Titles

Fred Ecoffey had an easy time of defending his jockey title while R. A. Lee was involved in a tight struggle before capturing another trainer title as the 30-day State Fairgrounds racing season ended.

Ecoffey, in establishing an all-time season victory mark of 52 triumphs, easily outdistanced the field as he continued his dominance of Lincoln racing.

Lee of Silver Creek scored one win, place and show more than runner-up Larry Staroscik to earn his title.

Iowa State's Taylor Gains Weight Easily

Munich (UPI) — Since Chris Taylor from Iowa State weighs 400 pounds he is asked more times than he cares to count each day about his eating habits. So it's lucky he has a sense of humor.

"I gain weight so easily," he said, "That when I walked past a hamburger stand the other day I gained eight pounds."

Prefontaine Snaps Record In Pre-Olympic Track Meet

Munich (AP) — Steve Prefontaine, Oregon's boy wonder of the distance races, smashed the American record for the 3,000-meter run Thursday night in a pre-Olympic track and field meet in cold weather.

The 21-year-old from Coos Bay, Ore., blazed the distance of just under two miles in 7 minutes 47.6 seconds, cracking the American mark of 7:54.2 by Jim Beatty 10 years ago. Prefontaine then continued around the track to record a fast 8:19.4 time for two miles.

The time for two miles would easily break the American mark of 8:22.0 but it cannot be accepted because the race officially ended after 3,000 meters.

Earlier, West Germans stole the show with outstanding performances in the javelin and pole vault.

Americans Vince Matthews and Lee Evans ran 1-2 in the fastest heat of the 400 meters, clocking 44.7 and 44.8 seconds over the artificial surface.

Josh Owusu, a Ghana long jumper who competed for San Angelo State College in Texas, soared 26-5⅝ to edge West Germany's Hans Baumgartner, who did 26-4¼. American Randy Williams did 26-3, for third.

Sylvia Chivas of Cuba and Barbara Ferrell of the United States both ran 100 meters in 11.2, Tom Gage of the United States took the hammer throw at 225-3, and Japan's Takaharu Koyama ran the 3,000-meter steeplechase in 8:33.0, beating Australian world record holder Kerry O'Brien.

U.S. Army Lt. Tom Hill won the high hurdles in 13.7. Many top athletes chose not to compete following a meet at the Olympic Stadium the night before.

Meanwhile the International Olympic Committee held out a beckoning hand to Communist China as it hurried to complete its business before Saturday's opening of the Munich Games.

Avery Brundage, in his next-to-last news conference before stepping out as president, said that Giulio Onesti, Italian member of the IOC, had made a report on his recent visit to the sprawling red power in the Far East.

"No recommendations regarding admission were put on the table," Brundage said. "I am sorry. We would like to have them in the Games."

He said since the purpose of the Olympics is to unite the youth of the world the IOC naturally would like to have the mainland Chinese compete but they must meet the requirements of the rest of the world.

The mainland Chinese have no Olympic organization, withdrawing in a controversy over the acceptance of Nationalist China. In 1956 before the Melbourne Games, the mainland Chinese had 150 athletes standing by in Peking to compete but held them back when the IOC refused to oust Taiwan.

The 84-year-old Brundage was jaunty and relaxed as he strode beside the Bavarian parliament building known as the Maximilianeum, flanked by Lord Killanin, his successor as IOC president, and vice-president Count Jean de Beaumont of France.

Brundage was asked by one reporter why, when the IOC is contending that the Games are growing too big, it would add a competition such as women's rowing, bringing in six more events and 300 additional competitors.

"It's not very consistent," he admitted.

"Could you say anything else about that?" he was asked further.

"I could," Brundage replied tartly. That was that.

Brundage acknowledged that the matter of Alpine skiing and its growing commercialism had been discussed by the IOC delegates.

"The scandals of Alpine skiing were reviewed," the Chicago millionaire said.

Chess Match Adjourns With Fischer Favored

. . . SPECTATOR SLEEPS DURING PLAY

Reykjavik (UPI) — Bobby Fischer and Boris Spassky adjourned the 18th game of their world chess championship Thursday night on the 42nd move of an "exciting" game that put one man to sleep with Fischer holding a pawn advantage and winning position.

The challenger arrived seven minutes late and played his favorite king pawn opening without even noticing the three rows of seats he had ordered out earlier this week were back. Spassky responded with a Sicilian defense, Rauser variation.

Fischer played past the usual 40-move adjournment cutoff. But Spassky, looking very tired, sat for 17 minutes with his back to the crowd and his hand over his eyes and finally sealed his 42nd move to be opened at resumption of the game Friday.

Chess experts said Fischer held a "winning position" but that Spassky might be able to save a draw. The Russian team of grandmasters who act as Spassky's seconds adjourned for a night of analyzing to try to salvage the draw.

Spassky has some chances for a draw," Yugoslav grandmaster Svetozar Gligoric said. "I thought it was lost for him but he has improved some."

U.S. grandmaster Larry Evans said, "I take Bobby to win this game."

Grandmaster Isaac Boleskavsky, one of Spassky's four seconds, conceded "White is in better position. But all is not lost. It will be a long night." He referred to the analysis of the adjourned game which awaited the Russian team.

However, Danish international master Jens Enevoldsen predicted a Fischer win. "I think the big nail is about to be driven into Spassky's coffin," he said.

The game started quickly and experts termed it "very exciting." However, one man in a front row fell asleep and snored so loudly that Fischer complained to the arbiter and the man was awakened.

Race Fields Set On State Fair Slate

A field of over 35 cars is expected for the three consecutive afternoons of grand-championship sprint car racing, being held at the Nebraska State Fair, September 2, 3, and 4.

The three day racing schedule, the valuable IMCA points, and the $11,500 plus total purse money, is inspiration aplenty for keen competition, hard charging, and an assault on the record book.

With technical, mechanical advancements made in the past year, the IMCA record book for the sprint car division, has been freely rewritten, and is in jeopardy each and every time the drivers take to the track.

One of those drivers establishing new records, and entered for the Nebraska State Fair's racing fare, is Dick Sutcliffe of Greenwood, Mo., one-half of Dave Van Patten's Corn Belt Racing Team.

Sutcliffe, 1971's second place finisher in the IMCA is a top contender for this season's championship crown. After setting four new track records at Eldon, Iowa, Sunday, August 13, he moved out of his No. 6 spot up to the No. 3 slot, and is applying the pressure to the front-runner, Ray Lee Goodwin of Kansas City, Missouri.

Sutcliffe's record setting pace for the 25-lap trip was 10:43.80, which in comparison, betters his racing partner's Ron Perkins' record for 25-laps at Lincoln, set in 1970, with the time of 11:15.12.

The Corn Belt Racing Team's other half, Ron Perkins of Des Moines, Iowa, is seeking to better his tenth place finish for the 1971 season. He set a new track record at Eldon, Iowa, for eight lap-first heat, with a time of 3:23.58, and his ability for being a record setter can never be discounted.

Time trials will be held on Saturday, September 2, and Monday, September 4, at 1 p.m. with racing commencing immediately thereafter.

National Speedways, Inc., will officiate the racing schedule.

Unknown Karl Gets Golf Lead

Pinehurst, N.C. (AP) — Richie Karl, whose greatest claim to fame is a pair of Alaskan Amateur championships, fashioned a stunning, seven-under-par 65 for the first-round lead in the $100,000 Liggett & Myers Open Golf Tournament Thursday.

With most of the game's big guns on the sidelines awaiting the Saturday start of the $150,000 U.S. Pro Match Play Championship, Karl held a one-stroke lead over another long shot, Bob Barbarossa, and little Deane Beman, who were tied at 66.

Paul Moran was alone with a 67 on the hot and muggy day at the Country Club of North Carolina course, a 6,988-yard lake-dotted layout in the Carolina Sandhills.

K-State Seniors 'Go To Showers'

Manhattan, Kan. (AP) — Kansas State's football seniors celebrated the end of twice-daily practices Thursday by going to the showers early while the younger players battled through a 90-minute scrimmage.

Coach Vince Gibson had mixed emotions over the workout.

"The defense played with a lot of enthusiasm," he said. "They really hit people. I was disappointed in the offensive linemen because they didn't come off the ball well at all. But our offensive backs ran well."

He praised the work of end Willie Cullars, tackle Charles Clarington and linebackers Roger Stucky and Bob Rauscher.

Cowboys Limit Contact Work

Stillwater, Okla. (AP) — The Oklahoma State University football Cowboys went through their first full-dress practice Thursday morning and then returned for their first workout on Lewis Stadium's new Astro Turf surface in the afternoon.

Head Coach Dave Smith said his crew "didn't hit too much" in the morning session. The Pokes limited the contact to fundamental blocking and tackling drills. The afternoon session was filmed.

"We needed to film a workout to help us evaluate personnel," Smith said "We'll film as much as we can from here on. We hope to be able to grade individuals in time to determine our starters by sometime next week."

Stocking Begins At Two Rivers

By The Associated Press

The stocking of trout at Two Rivers state recreation area has been resumed, the state Game and Parks Commission reported Thursday.

Sale of trout tags at the Put-and-Take Lake will begin Friday, the commission said.

The stocking had been halted several weeks ago due to a decline in the lake's oxygen level which made the water unsuitable for fish. Commission biologists said the oxygen content has recently increased to the point where the lake will again support trout.

Germany Remembers Owens, 1936 Olympics

. . . BLACK SLIGHTED BY HITLER

MUNICH (AP) — Germany remembers, and Jesse Owens is glad.

"It gives me a good, warm feeling," the aging black hero of the 1936 Berlin games said Thursday after wading through mobs of autograph seekers to his austere little office in the Olympic Village.

"Everywhere I go, it's like this. I walk down the main Munich streets with my wife and grandchildren and I hear people say, "There he is—Jesse Owens."

"We were eating in a restaurant and an elderly couple came up and wanted to talk. They had remembered Berlin. I went out to the stadium area for some filming this morning. Hundreds gather around.

"People came up and gave me pens and all sorts of little souvenirs. A middle-aged woman kissed me on the cheek and said, 'we're glad you're here.'"

This is the great Jesse Owens who was slighted by Adolf Hitler after he won four gold medals with record-shattering performances in 1936 in the 100 and 200 meters, broad jump and 400-meter relay race.

Owens isn't sure that the Fuehrer actually snubbed him but, regardless, he holds no animosity.

"I never was angry," he said. "I knew Hitler was in the royal box but was concentrating so much—an athlete has to—that I never was aware of his actions I left that to the newsmen.

"But, looking back, I am glad the world has this contrast to look at. Hitler destroyed 6 million people. I was lucky enough to represent the good side of life—a black boy from poverty occupying the spotlight as a sports champion."

Owens, now 58, at 185, twenty-two pounds heavier than when he was the Ohio State Thunderbolt, is in Munich as guest of the German Organizing Committee.

He strode through the Olympic Village in a bright red-white-and blue plaid jacket and striped pants. Admirers brushed past such world famous athletes as Jim Ryun, Shane Gould and Kiphoge Keino to get his autograph.

He was besieged every few feet of his journey. Even the athletes themselves, many from foreign countries thronged around just to get a glimpse of him.

"People are always bugging me about the Berlin Games—asking what I thought of Hitler and the snub and of treatment of black athletes. I am not bitter. I am happy. I came along at a dramatic moment of history and I am glad I can always say 'I was there.'"

Bobsled Event Struck From 1976 Olympics

Munich (AP) — The four-man bobsled event was struck out of the 1976 Winter Olympics program Thursday, an International Olympics Committee source said.

This means that the games will be all held in and around Denver, Colo.

Former Husker Brownson Fined

Former Cornhusker quarterback Van Brownson was fined $100 and his driver's license was suspended for six months Thursday on a driving with more than .10% alcohol in his blood charge.

Brownson, who was arrested Wednesday night by the State Patrol after being involved in a one-car accident on U.S. 77 north of Lincoln, pleaded nolo contendere to the charge and was found guilty by Municipal Judge Donald Grant.

Brownson was recently placed on waivers by the Baltimore Colts after he was drafted by the Colts earlier this year. His three-year Nebraska football career ended last year as the second string quarterback behind Jerry Tagge.

Nebraska Pair Fined $185 Each

By The Associated Press

Two Nebraska football players have been fined a total of $185 each by the Lancaster County Court after pleading guilty to charges of trespassing and disturbing the peace.

The pair, middle guard Bill Anderson and halfback Don Westbrook, each 20, were arrested in connection with an Aug. 10 incident at an NU fraternity house.

A third man, William Hodges of Toledo, Ohio, was earlier fined $80 for obstructing and perverting justice by providing false information.

The players were each fined $160 on the trespassing charge and $25 each for disturbing the peace.

Police called to the Sigma Chi fraternity house by the report of a burglary in progress found Anderson and Westbrook inside the house and Hodges outside in a car.

Anderson is from Toledo and Westbrook is from Cheyenne, Wyoming.

Novelist Solzhenitsyn Denounces His Country

©The New York Times

Stockholm — Aleksandr I. Solzhenitsyn, the Soviet novelist whose works are banned in the Soviet Union, bitterly denounced his country in the lecture he would have delivered if he could have accepted the Nobel Prize he won in 1970.

"Woe to that nation whose literature is disturbed by the intervention of power," he said in his lecture, which was published here Thursday by the Nobel Foundation in its yearbook. "Because that is not just a violation against freedom of print, it is the closing down of the heart of the nation, a slashing to pieces of its memory."

The writer also denounced the United Nations as an immoral organization in an immoral world that "jealously guards the freedom of some nations and neglects the freedom of others."

As a result of "an obedient vote," Solzhenitsyn said, the United Nations "declines to undertake the investigation of private appeals — the groans, screams and beseechings of humble individual plain people — not large enough a catch for such a great organization."

Nobel Foundation spokesmen declined to say how they had obtained the Solzhenitsyn lecture.

The novelist, now 53 years old, won the Nobel prize for literature in 1970 but did not travel to Stockholm to receive it at the prize ceremony on Dec. 10 of that year because he said, he was afraid that he would not be allowed back into the Soviet Union.

Arrangements were then made to present the Nobel medal and diploma to him last spring in a ceremony in a private apartment in Moscow. But that was canceled when Dr. Karl Ragnar Gierow, the permanent secretary of the Swedish Academy, which selects the annual literature laureate, was denied a visa.

The Nobel foundation then decided to publish the lecture in the yearbook, entitled "The Nobel Prize in 1971." Gierow said in a statement that the lecture, as published, was identical to the one that the writer would have delivered at the Moscow ceremony.

The cash prize of about $80,000 that accompanied the Nobel award was paid into a Swiss bank account in Solzhenitsyn's name.

The lecture, published by the foundation in an English that shows signs of hasty translation, expresses a deeply pessimistic outlook on the future of civilization.

"Violence, less and less embarrassed by the limits imposed by centuries of lawfulness, is brazenly and victoriously striding across the whole world," Solzhenitsyn said.

He denounced "hijackings, kidnappings, explosions and fires of recent years," he said, that were being used by the forces of evil to announce "their determination to shake and destroy civilization!"

"And they may well succeed," he added.

In the face of this violence, the writer said, the spirit of appeasement synonymous with Munich continues to prevail.

"The timid civilized world has found nothing with which to oppose the onslaught of a sudden revival of bare-faced barbarity, other than concessions and smiles," he declared.

The writer, who spent eight years in labor camps and three in exile for anti-Stalinist remarks, denounced his homeland where writers such as the poet Anna Akmatova and the satirist Yevgeny Zamyatin, "interred alive throughout their lives, are condemned to create in silence until they die, never hearing the echo of their written words."

Speaking of the prison camps where writers like himself were imprisoned, he said:

"A whole national literature remained there, cast into oblivion not only without a grave, but without even underclothes, naked, with a number tagged onto its toe.

"Russian literature did not cease for a moment, but from the outside it appeared a wasteland!"

Writers themselves, Solzhenitsyn said, are also responsible for the development of the world into its present state.

"A writer is not the detached judge of his compatriots and contemporaries," he declared, "he is an accomplice to all the evil committed in his native land or by his countrymen."

Solzhenitsyn called on writers and friends of literature to go to war against the evils of the world.

"Mankind's sole salvation," he said, "lies in everyone making everything his business: in the people of the east being vitally concerned with what is thought in the west, the people of the west vitally concerned with what goes on in the east."

Solzhenitsyn, whose works include "One Day in the Life of Ivan Denisovich," "The First Circle," and "The Cancer Ward," was chosen by the Swedish Academy as the 1970 Nobel laureate "for the ethical force with which he has pursued the indispensable traditions of Russian literature."

Vets Against War Plead Innocent To Conspiracy

Gainesville, Fla. (AP) — Six Vietnam Veterans Against the War pleaded innocent Thursday to a federal charge of conspiring to disrupt the Republican National Convention with violence.

When the six appeared before U.S. District Court Judge David L. Middlebrooks each announced: "I am guilty of crimes against the Indochinese people but innocent of the charges in this indictment."

Middlebrooks set Oct. 10 as the trial date and allowed the veterans' $25,000 bonds to stand

When the judge entered the courtroom, the veterans and five women supporters refused to stand. Middlebrooks ordered the court cleared of all spectators and said he would not tolerate disrespect of the United States of America in his courtroom.

Before the arraignment, about 200 VVAW members marched the mile from their campsite to the courthouse. Officials of the organization said the numbers were reduced because cars carrying members to Gainesville from Miami Beach had broken down enroute.

A late-night convoy of 20 cars and buses had assembled in a parking lot near the hall where the final session of the Republican National Convention was being held and set out for the 300-mile trip north.

Stereo Stolen

Stereo equipment valued at $520 was taken from the Earl Alber apartment at 1424 D late Wednesday night or early Thursday morning, according to police reports.

Cat Lady Lives In Station Wagon After Eviction

San Francisco (AP) — Sally Meir says 'it's not really uncomfortable" living in a 1961 station wagon with 26 cats.

Mrs. Weir took up daytime residence in the car Wednesday after she was evicted from her $150-a-month apartment for being six months behind in her rent. Various neighbors have offered her a place to stay at night while she looks for a new place.

"Somehow I just know it's going to work out," said Mrs. Weir, known in her neighborhood as the Cat Lady of Noe Valley.

". . . I have to stay with my cats. they get nervous and I sing to them. It's not really uncomfortable. After all, it is a station wagon."

Flood Insurance Available In 4 Nebraska Cities

State Insurance Director James Jackson has urged insurance agents in four Nebraska cities to advise their clients of the availability of flood insurance.

The four cities are Omaha, Lincoln, Papillion, and Columbus, the only cities in the state eligible for national flood insurance protection.

Citing damage by tropical storm Agnes on the East Coast recently, Jackson said "rates recently were reduced and are now even more affordable."

"All Nebraska residents of the eligible cities who are subject to flood exposure to their homes should contact their insurance agent to see if their property is eligible and to inquire about this protection."

Blue Chips Fall Sharply In Market

New York (AP) — Blue-chip prices fell sharply Thursday in a wave of profit taking that appeared to have been touched off by a rise in the prime lending rate.

Oils and glamours were especially weak.

Although a move by banks to raise the rate they charge their best corporate customers had been anticipated on Wall Street for several days, Chase Manhattan Bank's announcement of a ¼% increase to 5½% sent stock prices sharply lower.

Some analysts said in the absence of any stimulating news to counter-balance the prime-rate hike, investors began to sell for profits in stocks that had made strong advances in recent sessions.

However, other analysts, such as Robert Johnson of Paine, Webber, Jackson & Curtis, said they felt continued pressure on the dollar in foreign exchange markets was a key factor in the market's decline.

Increased activity by investors Thursday was evidenced by the large number of big block trades.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks fell 11.97 to 958.38, a drop of 1.23 per cent.

Of the 1,758 issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange, 468 issues advanced, and 970 declined.

The most-actively traded Big Board stock was Gulf Oil, down 1 to 25 on 402,900 shares, including a block of 230,000 shares at 25¼.

AT&T, the second-most-active issue, was up ½ to 45⅛ on 319,200 shares, including a 100,000-share block at 45¼.

In oils, Texaco was down ½ at 34⅜; Jersey Standard fell 1⅛ to 79⅛; California Standard dropped 2⅛ to 66¾; and Indiana Standard slipped 1½ to 75.

In glamours, IBM dropped 5¾ to 407¼, Control Data was off 2½ at 74⅛, Xerox dropped 4¼ to 158¾; and Polaroid was down 1⅝ at 118⅛.

Lehigh Valley Industries, up 1¼ to 2¾, registered the sharpest gain in terms of percentage, while United Park City Mines showed the biggest percentage loss, dipping ¼ to 2¼.

Big-block trades also included 199,900 shares of United Telecommunications at 19¾, off ⅝; 145,700 shares of Continental Illinois Realty at 19½, off ½; 137,000 shares of Pan American World Airways at 13, down ⅜; 134,000 shares of Handleman at 11½, off 1¼; and 114,000 shares of Southern Railway at 53 unchanged.

Wheat, Soybean Futures Soar To New Highs

Chicago (AP) — Wheat and soybean futures again soared to new highs for the season, but profit-taking before the close cut back the gains on Thursday.

Oats and corn gained from 1½ to 3½ cents a bushel, while the Chicago Board of Trade soybean meal advanced more than 50 cents a ton and soy oil gained 15 points.

Iced broilers were irregular at the close and trade was fairly dull.

At the close, wheat was 1½ to 2½ cents a bushel lower, September 1.86; corn was 2⅜ to 3⅝ cents higher, September 1.29⅞; oats were 1¼ to 1½ higher, September 81½ cents; and soybeans were ⅛ to 1¼.

Penn Central Stockholders Meeting Adjourns After Stormy Session

Philadelphia (UPI) — A stormy five-hour meeting of the Penn Central Co., filled with shouting by angry shareholders, ended Thursday without a decision on a critical plan of refinancing a $64 million debt.

Archibald Johnson, president of the company, which is the parent firm of the Penn Central Railroad, had to adjourn the meeting because the count of votes and proxies had not been completed.

The meeting was to resume Friday at 11 a.m.

There are 140,000 shareholders in the firm. They were to vote on the refinancing plan and the election of 10 men to the board of directors.

If the plan to repay the $64 million loaned by Swiss banks fails, it is likely the Penn Central Co. will follow its railroad into bankruptcy court.

Under the plan, instead of repaying the loan, the company would give the banks part of its stock.

The banks would then join the shareholders in hoping the railroad eventually steps up from bankruptcy and that the value of their shares will rise.

However, Johnson only had a chance to gavel the meeting to order when some of the 400 shareholders in the ballroom rushed to the four microphones in the room and began loudly voicing their opinions.

Johnson quietly listened to the complaints, replying only with a repeated "we'll get to that, we'll get to that," to answer the shouting. He sometimes signaled to a technician on the side of the stage to shut the mike off.

Shareholders fought for Johnson's attention, and shouts of "Mr. Chairman, Mr. Chairman," echoed through the hall.

However, when a director or company official rose to answer questions he was greeted with shouts from the crowd of "Who is he? How much does he make? What does he know about this plan?"

The company was formed in 1969 as a holding company. Stockholders voted to exchange their shares of stock in the merged Pennsylvania and New York Central railroads for a like amount of Penn Central Co. stock.

The stock later plunged from a high of $86 a share to its present level of about $4 a share.

The firm tried to hold an annual meeting in 1971, but was stopped by an avalanche of suits which claimed its proxy material was misleading.

Here is a practical little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is six or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add three. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures gives you.
